Ty Hafan gears up for May 13...

The 'Rainbow Run' helps youngsters like Scarlett

BARRY ISLAND'S most colourful fun run is back this summer, raising money for life-limited children across Wales.

Following the success of last year's first Rainbow Run in the town, the paint-splattering event returns to Barry Island on May 13.

Raising money for life-limited children and young people and their families at Ty Hafan children's hospice in Sully, the Rainbow Run is a 5km colour run (or walk) in which, along the route, participants are showered with different colours of powder paint!

The event raises money for children like Scarlett Thomas, who was born with a condition so rare it doesn't even have a name and needs 24/7 care from parents Chris and Clair.

Mum Clair said: "Scarlett is now three years old. She is a wicked, cheeky and funny little girl.

"She enjoys it at Ty Hafan and gets so much out of it. At Ty Hafan, they focus on making a short life a full life. Now, we know this really is true.

"Thanks to the Ty Hafan play team, we're learning how to play with Scarlett, focusing on her strengths instead of what she can't do - helping her development and improving her quality of life.

"As long as Scarlett is happy and smiling we can cope with anything. Going to Ty Hafan is the only time we get to be a family. In more ways than I can explain, Ty Hafan means we're no longer alone."

Mair Kinsey, events officer at Ty Hafan, said: "People who take part in our Rainbow Run events are helping families make the most of the precious time they have left together because their valued sponsorship allows us to continue offering care and support across Wales."

For more information, or to sign up for the Rainbow Run, please visit www.tyhafan.org/rainbow-run.

Memorial bench is planned for Morgan

A BARRY councillor is trying to raise money for a memorial bench in memory of a teenager who recently lost his life in the town.

Coun Richard Bertin, who represents the town's Court Ward, is trying to raise £294 to cover the cost of refurbishing a bench and installing a plaque at Jackson's Bay in memory of Morgan Ackerman.

The location has been suggested by his mother Leanne Owen.

Coun Bertin said: "If any individuals or businesses would like to help in contributing towards the cost of this bench please do not hesitate to get in touch with me."

Coun Bertin is also to present a petition at the next full meeting of the Vale Council calling for urgent safety improvements to be made in the Witchell area.

His email address is rjbertin@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk.

Run-down 'Meals on Wheels' service

THE Vale Council has decided to contract out the meals on wheels service, with the Food Shed, Parc Prison, Bridgend being the current favourite to take over.

Currently, they do not offer pureed food which some elderly require, although I understand they are investigating the possibility for the future.

The council service extends further than the supply of meals. The current delivery staff are excellent and report any concerns they have of the elderly clients immediately. They are also very flexible when needs of the client changes with short notice. I have first hand experience of this.

The Vale budget for supplying this service for the year 2016/2017 was £13,334 (appears somewhat low) and the service cost £50,918 thus making a deficit – these are the Vale's own figures following a freedom of information request.

The service has been run down over the past number of years, particularly following cooking equipment problems at Southway, Cowbridge, and the meals on wheels qualification criteria having also been changed.

Consequently, the financial viability of the service is now in question due to the depleted demand, as the service is no longer offered to many parts of the rural Vale with a high percentage of elderly population.

At the same Vale Council meeting, the councillors voted to have computer tablets at a cost of £30,000.

School free breakfast clubs cost the Vale in the same financial year £462,527, although I do understand this was a Government policy; again the Vale's own figures following a FOI request.

Should we as a society be offering a breakfast club system at the expense of other critical requirements? Surely a parent's basic parental duty is to ensure their child has breakfast prior to leaving the house. Should they choose to do so, the Vale would have almost £500,000 pounds to spend on more critical social areas.

ANTI-ABERTHAW GROUPS ARE MAKING 'FALSE CLAIMS'

AFTER a recent, peaceful protest at Aberthaw Power Station and subsequent press coverage on emissions and alleged health risks being linked to our site, I wanted to address these allegations head on.

This year will be a major transition in the station's history; we are investing £5 million in technology that will significantly lower NOx emissions.

However, in turn, this will signal the end of Welsh coal deliveries to site, which given our joint history is highly disappointing.

We will also reduce our generation levels, meaning that there will be job reductions across the site. This is all to ensure that we can produce power when needed, whilst complying with emissions standards.

It is very difficult for me and the staff at site to read reports of health-related illnesses and deaths, allegedly caused as a result of our operations; especially as we make Health, Safety and Environmental Performance our number one concern.

The claims being made by Friends of the Earth and Reclaim the Power are flawed and are based on inaccurate reporting of data.

The false claims are being used emotively to raise fear amongst the public and discredit the vital role Aberthaw Power Station plays in ensuring security of electricity supply for the UK.

The reality is very different – over a 14-year period of monitoring local air quality, both SO₂ and NOx concentrations have been significantly below the relevant EC and UK Government Standards.

I would like to thank the local community for their continued support.

'Resignation call was justified'

REGARDING the item on page 3, February 2: 'Sully-Cosmeston housing leaflet leads to call for resignation', how right of Coun Kevin Mahoney to call for Coun Burnett's resignation for misrepresentations over the council's proposal to build on the Cosmeston Upper Farm fields, right up to the coast.

Her planning officers dismissed objections on the roads being congested and incapable of taking more traffic, declaring 'no insurmountable infrastructure requirements' and that the Highways Department just requires measures to 'alleviate' the traffic problems.

Yet FoE (Friends of the Earth) disclosed what the Highways Department actually wrote was "nil detriment" to the traffic situation.

At the LDP inquiry presenting the Friends of the Earth case on January 24, I disclosed that the Highways report mentioned the serious traffic congestion at the Merrier Harrier and Barons Court junctions, and required the planners to 'identify the highway improvements required, that will result in nil detriment to the existing traffic situation' if they wanted to include the Cosmeston site in the LDP.

As Kevin Mahoney shows, bugging a huge housing estate at Cosmeston was Coun Burnett's choice, not the LDP Inspector's. But traffic objections should clinch the case against.

Coun Burnett and her planners know that traffic from a development of this size cannot be accommodated by the existing highway infrastructure, nor did they try to identify feasible highway improvements. Instead they changed the Highways Department wording of 'nil detriment' to the weasel word 'alleviate'.

So will Burnett take responsibility for this and resign?

'WHY DO PEOPLE INFLECT CRUELTY ON ANIMALS?'

JUST what is it with some people? Why do they feel the need to inflict cruelty on animals?

The news I read about this leaves me reeling!

Fox hunting is banned by law and yet it still goes on, much to the dismay of many distressed locals and protesters alike.

The hunting fraternity will say the kill only delivers elderly or infirm foxes. I wonder if that is the ones the village postman has allowed people to take pot shots at on his land?

Didn't he do well as he bragged about the latest victim, a vixen, shot and killed leaving her cubs for dead too.

It makes no sense in our supposed civilised society of animal lovers that such antiquated bloodsports are still condoned.

It is sad these people spend their leisure time killing for fun.

I applaud all animal activists out there, including the very brave hunt protester as she was mocked for her actions on Boxing Day – and I deplore all those cruel people, including that postman for his!

T Abery, Barry.

NHS problems start at the top

SINCE the UK spends less money as a percentage of the national wealth than most EU countries on health, it is reasonable to state that this Government is denying the NHS, and also the Social Care Services, adequate funds for ideological reasons.

For 30 years, NHS directors have been cutting bed numbers, telling the public this was efficient, while patients lay on trolleys – and ambulances, at £200,000 each, were used as stationary beds.

Year on year, directors wasted billions on agency staff at inflated rates, where most of the money went to the agency owners. They never learnt, over a quarter of a century, that such desperate staff shortages must derive from the incompetence of those who did the forward planning – themselves. Such top management demotivates good staff.

The NHS, based upon collective ethics, free of insurance haggling, is the most efficient organisation in the world. The explanation of the years of its struggle, goes far beyond a lack of money, to the basic beliefs of those chosen as directors, like the directors in British banks and elsewhere.

Such people are quite unsuited to understand collective ethics, the inspired dream of Clem Attlee.

And even now the public is incapable of seeing the difference.

How many actually use T9 service?

AN item in The GEM on February 2 headed 'Wasteful T9 bus should be scrapped, says a ward candidate', again quotes the defensive attitude of the Welsh Government.

Again, no mention is made of the losses incurred by this service. What is the point of being 'one of the UK's fastest growing airports' if the deficit increases year on year?

If the T9 is so 'popular' then scrap the subsidy

INOTE with some interest the Welsh Government's claim that the T9 service is going from "strength to strength".

Any growth in passenger numbers is welcome, but it's important to recognise that the best year on record for the T9 coincides with a record £455,000 subsidy by the taxpayer.

Neither do these statistics alter the fact that the bus is frequently empty, and that local bus services in the Vale have been decimated in recent years by Labour cuts.

We all want to see a thriving airport, but the sight of the empty T9 running along Port Road 34 times a day is extremely galling for local residents who don't have the luxury of a regular bus service.

However, in a spirit of objectivity and support, let's give the government the credit they deserve, because if the T9 is so successful then perhaps they can scrap the subsidies that keeps it running every year, and put that money back into local services.

Minister Sue takes part in 'Swimathon' for Marie Curie

A CHURCH minister is set to tackle 'Swimathon 2017' in aid of Marie Curie, after seeing first-hand the care provided at the charity's Penarth hospice.

Sue Fender, who has been minister at Elfed Avenue Church in the town for the past five years, will tackle a 2.5km swim as part of the nationwide swimming challenge.

The event takes place across the weekend of April 7-9 and is extra special this year because Swimathon will be celebrating its 30th anniversary.

This year money will be raised for Marie Curie, which provides care and support for people living with a terminal illness and their families.

Rather than taking part on the official weekend, Sue will be doing her swim at Penarth Leisure Centre on April 15 - Sue Fender, Minister at Elfed Avenue United Church in Penarth.

Easter Saturday.

It will be the second time Sue has taken on the challenge - the first was in 2012 when she managed to raise £850.

"I went much better than I thought, a little thing called adrenaline kicked in," said the mum-of-two.

"I really did enjoy it, and I've wanted to do it again and for various reasons was not been able to. I also wanted to wait until it was in partnership with Marie Curie again."

It was during a visit to the Cardiff and Vale Hospice in Penarth that Sue first found out about the challenge.

"There have been a number of my church members who have been cared for at the Penarth hospice and their end of life care has just been absolutely amazing," she said.

"It's about giving people the best 'end of life care' and doing whatever we can do to make life more comfortable."

"I am driven by that because I've seen people who have died painfully and lonely, or not pleasantly, and then I find myself wishing they could have had the opportunities that somewhere like this can give. That's motivation enough for me."

One of Sue's church members cared for at the hospice was Trevor Chinn, the late husband of Barbara Chinn, who died in the January before Sue's first swim.

Barbara said: "Sue's Swimathon challenge all started in Trevor's memory."

"I was very touched and very proud when she first told me. The care at the hospice was incredible. They let us stay there overnight for three nights towards the end."

"Trevor was made so comfortable at the hospice, the nurses were wonderful with him. There was nothing he asked for that he didn't get. If he fancied something, they would get it and they were very kind to Ruth and I. They did all they could for us. It's the most wonderful, caring place."

"The hospice was there if we needed help afterwards as well. I was fortunate that I had my church too."

As well as fundraising for the charity, the swim is a personal challenge for Sue, who lives with fibromyalgia - a long-term condition which causes pain over the body.

"I didn't think there was much point in doing something that I could just crawl out of bed and do, so I wanted that personal challenge and that's part of my motivation for this year as well."

If you wish to sponsor Sue, see www.justgiving.com/fundraising/swimathon-2017-Suefenderswim. For further information about Swimathon including how to sign up visit www.Swimathon.org.

'Good Neighbours' are welcomed at Woody's Lodge

A warm welcome was given by Noel Godfrey and other veterans at Woody's Lodge - based at HMS Cambria in Barry Docks - to Age Connects Good Neighbours co-ordinators last week.

The impressive Woody's Lodge provides a happy and supportive environment for veterans and former emergency service personnel.

The Age Connects ladies said: "This is exactly what so many older people need. Somewhere to meet others who understand you, because they also had the same experiences."

Age Connects said it welcomes Woody's as an addition to the opportunities for socialising in the Vale and will support older people to find out more via the Senior Health Shop, Barry, or the Age Connects office in Llantwit Major.

Former Tory to stand as an independent in May's Vale elections

VETERAN local Penarth councillor Anthony Ernest has announced that in the Vale elections on May 4, he will stand as an independent candidate in the Plymouth Ward.

He told The GEM: "My decision to contest the seat has not been taken lightly, and is a direct result of the outcome of a selection meeting held by local Conservatives in November last year, at which my nomination was rejected by the small handful of activists present."

He said he believed their motive was to ensure the selection of three members of the same family to stand in three separate wards of Penarth.

He explained: "It denies me, as a long standing sitting councillor in Plymouth Ward, of the opportunity to continue my committed work for the community."

"It is usually the case for a senior councillor to be renominated, especially in Penarth, and the questionable level of attendance at the meeting has shown that the experience and knowledge that I have given over many years to Penarth and the Vale, has failed to be appreciated, at least by the seven party members who voted at that dysfunctional meeting.

"As someone who has lived in Penarth for the whole of my life, was born in Plymouth ward, has been both a Vale and town councillor for several decades, and is active in many Penarth based organisations, I trust that those who know me will appreciate the range of county council activities that I have been involved with."

He added: "I cannot allow my considerable service as a Vale councillor to be closed by petty politics, and for that reason alone I have made the decision to stand as an independent candidate in this year's election. I can promise Penarth residents, whatever their political views, that they will be well served if they lend me their support on May 4."

'Excellent' report for Palmerston

PALMERSTON Primary School has been rated as 'excellent' in a recent inspection by Estyn.

The school was given the best possible mark in all but one category by the inspectorate, it was reported.

Teaching, learning experiences and leadership were among the 11 areas that received the highest praise, a fitting reward for the effort put in by pupils and staff.

"A double excellent result overall is a testament to the professional and dedicated team of staff and governors, wonderfully supportive parents and superb children at Palmerston Primary School," said acting headteacher Katy Edwards.

"The quality of teaching will always be a priority for us here at Palmerston, as is the expertise and enthusiasm of the teachers and support staff, which is crucial in determining the success of all our children."

"In this environment, where expectations are high and children really are at the heart of the school, they are able to produce their best work."

RSPCA warning as badger is rescued from a snare

The badger trapped in the snare, was rescued by the RSPCA.

A BADGER had a lucky escape after being rescued by RSPCA Cymru on February 5, it has been reported.

The cruel and indiscriminate nature of snares was highlighted by the charity after a badger became trapped in a device in a Barry field.

A spokesperson said: "The device was not a self-locking snare, which is illegal. However, it is an offence, under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, to wilfully injure, kill or take a badger (except under licence).

"Badgers are also listed under Schedule 6 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, which would make the use of a snare to catch badgers an offence.

"A member of the public initially thought the badger was foraging by the fence, but later found it to be trapped."

The snare had become caught around the badger's neck, with wounds visible on the animal's body. The badger was taken to a veterinary practice, where the snare was removed and it was given antibiotics and painkillers before being released back to the wild.

POLICE ISSUE APPEAL AFTER HOLTON ROAD ROBBERY

SOUTH Wales Police are appealing for information about a burglary that took place at Cash Solutions UK, on Holton Road, Barry, overnight between Thursday, February 9 and Friday, February 10.

Items stolen include a large heavy duty safe, various items of jewellery, mobile phones and tablets, games consoles and cash.

Police are appealing for anyone who may have witnessed this or have any information, to contact them on 101, quoting reference 1700052195, or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Dinas Powys castle was 'Welsh-built'

FOR many years, Archaeology Cymru has debated the true origins of a castle hidden behind houses in Dinas Powys.

The castle, which is now inaccessible, is visited by very few people, but holds a vital secret to the origins of native Wales.

The walls – practically complete at Dinas Powys – are more than 10 metres high and encircle an area just under the size of a football pitch, yet were not built by the Normans, but by a local lord before the Norman conquest of 1066, probably around 1050.

The published history of the site at Dinas Powys tells of its origins under the rule of the Normans, who had made the English suffer so much; then it was the turn of Wales, some time in the 1090s.

It also states that the Normans built in the area, with no church, no village, and very little access. However, under examination, this narrative falls apart. This type of landscape was the typical inaccessible type site found that native rulers used elsewhere in Wales.

The castle at Dinas Powys, except for a later Norman tower, was all built by the native people of Wales. It is a Welsh-built castle: as such, it has no gateway tower – a feature of most native castles – the walls are built in the Welsh style, and it lacks any windows (fenestration) in its walls.

Mark's shave for 'Breast Cancer Care'

BELOW: The final result – along with a cheque for £1,000 to Breast Cancer Care.

MELISSA Davis was diagnosed with breast cancer in June 2016, and since that time has gone through surgery, chemotherapy and radiotherapy.

Her husband Mark Davis vowed he would not shave his beard and moustache until she was well again and – true to his word – he didn't.

On February 11, the owner of 'Down to the Wood Barber' in Barry, Jack Williams performed the task of shaving off Mark's beard and moustache in aid of Breast Cancer Care.

Mark raised over £1,000 for the charity; Melissa is very proud of him and thinks his perseverance deserves recognition.

Melissa said: "We would also like to extend our thanks to everyone who has supported us and generously given donations.

"Thank you to Rhian Davis (our eight-year-old daughter), Marilyn Ankin, and family members who organised and held a coffee day last October and raised an additional £438; the final total will be presented to the Breast Care Centre at Llandough Hospital."

COUNCILLOR HAILS CAB

A VALE councillor recently dropped into the Cardiff and Vale Citizens Advice office in Barry to see the work it does.

Coun Richard Bertin, who represents the town's Court Ward, met the assistant manager of the centre, Ceri Morgan.

The councillor learnt of the pressures faced by the local CAB.

Challenges also faced by the Barry office are increased rent by the council on the building and the general condition of the building.

Another concern is the proposal by Welsh Government to change the Communities First initiative which might affect the service in those areas.

Labour Building Strong Communities in the Vale of Glamorgan

The Labour Party in the Vale of Glamorgan believes in people having decent homes they can afford, where they want to live.

That is why providing good quality homes for local people is a promise that a Labour controlled Council will continue to deliver. Labour will complete the Council housing stock regeneration and environmental improvements that we initiated.

Labour also believes people need accessible homes that meet the challenges they face. That is why Labour in the Vale will continue to drive down the time taken to implement disabled facility grants and build new homes for families with children who suffer from life-limiting conditions.

That's why Labour will continue to fight for the maximum number of affordable homes to be built in any new development to provide local homes for local people.

If you agree with us - Remember to vote for a Labour Council on Thursday 4th May 2017.

The Rainbow Run on Barry Island this year is on Saturday, May 13. To find out why people are so keen to get involved, see this week's front page story.

Builder to produce plan for former St Cyres site

THE Vale Council has concluded legal discussions with a house builder on the exchange of contracts for the sale of the former St Cyres site in Dinas Powys.

Last week local Plaid Cymru councillors had complained that the public were in the dark over what was happening with the site.

Local councillor Chris Franks had said: "We have no idea about the nature of these discussions with the developer. I fear that by the time information is available it will be a done deal. Local opinion will be excluded from being able to exercise any meaningful influence."

But this week a spokesperson for the Vale Council explained: "The council last week concluded legal discussions relating to exchanged contracts for the sale of the former St Cyres lower school in Dinas Powys to housebuilder Barratt David Wilson."

"The sale contract is conditional upon Barratt David Wilson obtaining planning permission for a master planned mixed use development."

"During the early stages many details of the negotiations were commercially confidential and so could not be discussed publicly. However, wherever possible, information has been shared with local councillors."

"The council's vision for the site was set by a community consultation undertaken in 2012 and 2013 in which new homes and community facilities were the most commonly suggested uses for the site. The developer's scheme will aim to deliver new private and affordable homes along with land for community uses."

"Barratt David Wilson will now prepare a detailed master plan to support a planning application for the site."

"A briefing for local councillors has now been arranged to discuss these and other key issues surrounding the project. "Full details of the proposals will be available to the public once the developer submits a master plan for scrutiny by the council's planning committee."

Following the Vale Council's comments Coun Franks told The GEM: "We understand that the Vale Planning Department has received an enquiry for preapplication advice from the agents acting for Barratt David Wilson Homes on the former St Cyres School site."

"The developers will be required to undertake a formal pre-application consultation which is a separate process in which applicants carry out their own series of consultations with residents. However, when they will be starting the consultation is not known. Following this process we imagine a planning application will be made."

Plaid councillor Val Hartrey said there were a number of questions regarding the site that needed to be answered. "Who knows what this consultation process will reveal."

"We want to know where the community where land is located within the site. What will be the road access off site? Will local roads be dug up for sewers, gas and electricity?"

'BUDDY BENCHES' NOW AT HOLTON PRIMARY

All buddies together at
Primary!

THE Parents and Friends Association at Holton Primary School in Barry has funded two 'Buddy Benches' that have been installed in both foundation phase and junior playgrounds.

"The colourful benches are designed for use by pupils when they need a friend to talk to. Other children or teachers will recognise this as a sign that children want help or support and come to talk with and assist them," a spokesperson explained.

The school recognised the value that pupil support has in enhancing social skills, interaction and citizenship among children. It also promoted an ethos of responsibility and care for others within the school and provides positive role models.

Headteacher Mr Gilbert said: "The Parents Association members are an integral part of the school community and about much more than simply fundraising. They work hard to bring staff, parents and friends together to support the school, and we are delighted that they have presented these buddy benches."

Barry Men's Forum and Italian connection Mussolini was paid £100 a week by MI5

THE speaker at last week's meeting of the Barry Men's Forum at Trinity Presbyterian Church Hall, saw the return of Romeo Basini, who spoke about the Italian-Welsh connections, and the problems especially associated with the Second World War.

History remembers Benito Mussolini as a founder member of the original 'Axis of Evil'—the Italian dictator who ruled his country with fear and forged a disastrous alliance with Nazi Germany. But a previously unknown area of his CV has come to light: his brief career as a British agent.

Archived documents have revealed that Mussolini got his start in politics in 1917 with the help of a £100 weekly wage from MI5.

In 1923, King George V awarded Mussolini the Knight Grand Cross of the Bath, which made him Sir Benito Mussolini.

On the outbreak of the Second World War, the Italians in the country together with others were considered aliens and rounded up. Some were sent to Australia, the Isle of Man and Canada. In July 1940, the Arandora Star set sail, under protest of the captain, from Liverpool with 1,340 internees on board plus Army guards and crew. It was sunk by a German U-Boat and 805 men died, of whom 417 were Italians.

Romeo continued his talk with some very interesting facts about the Italians' subsequent achievements in Britain, where they are now part of the establishment.

The next meeting is on February 23, when the speaker will be Haydn Burgess with a talk entitled 'Teenage Adventures at the end of the War'.

New members are very welcome, at £2 per meeting (which includes light refreshments), from 10.15am to 12 noon. The Barry Men's Forum meet at the Trinity Presbyterian Church Hall, every Thursday morning.

Friends raise £200 for Tenovus

THE Barry Friends of Tenovus Committee held their first Whist Drive at Romilly Bolls recently, raising just over £200 for the charity.

Prizes were won by John Coll, Evelyn Dodgson, Pat Moisan-Hill, Glenys Hinton, Dot Davies and Alf Woolcock.

The Whist Drive was the first of many fundraising activities that will take place this year—2017 is the 50th year that the committee has been together.

On Friday, March 31, the committee will be holding their first quiz of the year, starting at 7.30pm at Barry Athletic Club, Barry Island. Teams of five or six people are welcome to come along and support the evening. There will be a bar and refreshments.

Tickets are £6, and can be purchased before the event from Mary Thomas on 01446 733978 or Beryl Holmes on 01446 408420 or at the door.

'Free Will' scheme supports Marie Curie

MARIE CURIE has joined Penarth firms to offer a free Will writing service to anyone aged over 55.

In Wales, only 47 per cent of adults have written a Will. There are many reasons why not having a Will can leave your loved ones worse off when you die. This could be simple as causing an argument over who gets your gold rings, to family destroying custody battles, huge tax bills or leaving your partner homeless.

"Getting a Will is not 'preparing for death', it is simply a sensible adult thing to do, like having insurance, or going to the dentist," said Corrine Jones, legacy advisor for Wales.

For anyone who is considering creating or updating a Will, Marie Curie is working with Jennifer Melly Law, McGill Brown Solicitors, Lucas Law and Watkins and Gunn Solicitors to offer a free Will to people aged 55 and over.

Gifts given in Wills play a vital role in the charity as the equivalent of almost a quarter of all people cared for by Marie Curie last year were supported by gifts left in Wills. Gifts in Wills fund the equivalent of five out of the nine hospices Marie Curie runs.

Corrine Jones added: "It's important to make your wishes known by making a Will and this is a great opportunity to make the most of this free service for this limited time.

"Gifts in Wills are vital to Marie Curie. Every gift, however small, will help someone with a terminal illness spend their final days in the familiar surroundings of their own homes, surrounded by the people they love.

"You may decide to leave the charity a share of your estate or a small one-off gift – no matter what the size, a gift in your will can make a difference to Marie Curie."

To apply, call or email Corrine on 07545 422683; email Corrine.Jones@mariecurie.org.uk for more information.

Welsh Tall Ship's training award

Sir Alan Massey, CEO of MCA (left) presents the award to Vicky Williams and skipper Andy Hall from Challenge Wales.

CHALLENGE WALES, Wales' Tall Ship, has been awarded the 'UK Sail Training Vessel of the Year' by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA).

The award is given to a vessel which has had an exceptional year and has fulfilled sail training, seamanship and safety requirements.

Challenge Wales provides personal and social development training for young people aged 12 to 25 to help them improve their employability skills.

Sir Alan Massey of the MCA said: "We chose Challenge Wales as this year's highly deserving winner as the vessel stood out for the determination and resourcefulness of everybody involved with her to make a real, safe and lasting difference to the lives of communities.

"We were particularly impressed by the story of one of her crew, an 18-year-old man, whose life was given renewed purpose as a result of just a short time with Challenge Wales.

"This was a wonderful example of what can be achieved by experiencing well-managed, caring and professional training out at sea under sail – something that is barely achievable in any other type of activity."

The skipper of Challenge Wales, Captain Andy Hall, said: "Sail training is a great leveller, putting everyone on the same platform regardless of who you are and your background."

Dinas Powys Rotarians embark on 'Tour de Belgium'

A TEAM from Dinas Powys Rotary Club in the Vale of Glamorgan are embarking on a cycling challenge in aid of Prostate Cymru and the Rotary International Fund, which supports water aid treatments, shelter boxes and other global emergency causes.

The event will take place from April 20 – 23, and the 110km challenge will begin in Calais; the cyclists will be able to enjoy the scenic route of country lanes, corn and poppy fields to the French-Belgian border and into Flanders.

Once in Belgium, the team will cycle along the coast visiting Nieuwpoort, Blankenberge, Het Zwin and the Belgian-Dutch border town of Sluis. Finally, a picturesque route adjacent to a canal will take the team to their final destination of Bruges.

During their challenge, Dinas Powys Rotary Club has organised to meet with the rotary clubs of Nieuwpoort and Bruges West.

The club would like to thank Mainline Coaches in Gilfach Goch, CJ Contract Services in Barry and DFDS Seaways for supporting the team through transport and ferry crossings for the event.

You can support the team on JustGiving by visiting www.justgiving.com/companyteams/dinaspowisrotaryclubtourdebelgium.

If you would like to join the team on their challenge, contact Colin Jones via Colin-Jones16@sky.com.

The entry cost is £150 per person and the fee covers transport including ferry crossings, accommodation, team apparel and evenings of fellowship with the Belgian rotary clubs.

WOODY'S LODGE OPENS ITS DOORS FOR VETERANS

Woody's Lodge, a centre for providing veterans of both Armed and emergency services with access to charities, advice, counselling and a place to socialise with other veterans has opened its doors to the public.

The lodge is currently based on the grounds of HMS Cambria in Sully. It has a ground breaking and visionary ethos developed and brought to fruition by a group of local residents. It is led by Dr David Trotman who spearheaded the successful Penarth Pier Pavilion transformation.

Attendees from all over South Wales are welcome to visit with no commitment via referral or direct contact through the website www.woodyslodge.co.uk.

Its motto is 'Giving Space and Time' and the idea is simple – a place under one roof, where veterans of any age or background from the Vale or Cardiff can meet and connect with the help they require, be it social, mental or practical.

Woody's Lodge commemorates Penarth born and bred Marine and Special Boat Service member, Paul 'Woody' Woodland who lost his life in 2012 on a training exercise prior to returning to Afghanistan.

His fiancée, Sian has campaigned tirelessly in his memory since he died, and has raised thousands of pounds for related charities.

She has been a driving force behind Woody's Lodge, alongside Russ Kitley, a RAF veteran, who has had this project as a vision for 12 years. The last 18 months has been a whirlwind of extremely hard work, enthusiasm and dedication encompassing countless volunteer hours from the seven members of the Woody's Lodge Board.

Chairman of Woody's Lodge and Army veteran of 26 years, Noel Godfrey has said: "Without the hard work of a dedicated band of veterans, civilians and men and women of all ages, along with encouragement from our supporters, we could not have realised this dream.

"After 12 years in the making, we can now provide a special, unique, quiet and safe space for veterans to meet with support agencies and have the opportunity to socialise at the same time."

The project would not have been possible without the support of the staff of the Royal Navy at HMS Cambria and generosity of local businesses.

A presentation was held at the Senedd in Cardiff Bay on January 23 with speeches given in support of and explaining the purpose of the lodge by Jane Hutt AM, Carl Sargeant AM and Dr David Trotman.

Woody's Lodge is expected to attain charity status soon. <https://www.justgiving.com/crowdfunding/Woodyslodge>

How Spicketts became a key Barry institution

GRATEFUL thanks go to local historian Laurie Owens for writing in The GEM of January 26 the article headed 'Undertaking a new profession in old Barry'.

Laurie referred to the undertakers W Spickett and Son, which was established in 1837. Some additional information may be of interest to GEM readers.

Queen Victoria had just ascended to the throne to begin her 64-year 'glorious reign' when Spickett's started in business at Wesley House, Cadoxton, as jobbing carpenters, wheelwrights and undertakers.

The founders were David Spickett and William Spickett.

The thriving business was moved to a new address at 5 Barry Road, Cadoxton, before settling down at the Court Road premises, which were purpose-built for the undertaking business with a workshop at the rear. That was in 1899.

Over the years, the firm was actively involved in local affairs with both the founder and his son acting as clerks to the parish of Merthyr Dyfan, during the period when Barry grew from three scattered hamlets to a fairly large town, and while the docks were also being built.

Spicketts, in fact, played their part in the building of Barry Docks, carrying out a large amount of contract work in their role of jobbing carpenters.

Spicketts also provided all the surveyors' wooden pegs used for marking out the docks, but at that time the main business of the firm was still funeral work.

Life, of course, was far from easy in those days and wage packets were certainly none too fat. Many families simply couldn't afford the cost of a hearse and carriages, and the navvies building the docks had a tradition of carrying the coffin in procession through the streets.

At that time, the horse drawn 'Shellabier' and horse drawn carriages made light work of ploughing through the ankle deep winter mud of Barry's unpaved streets, but it was far more gruelling for the funeral bearers and mourners who made the slow journey on foot.

When William Spickett died in 1932, Frederick William Kenneth Hiley Spickett (known as Ken) took over the firm. Ken was married to Doris and they had six children; David, Alison, Pat, Beryl, John and Maryrose. Sadly, John died aged two, and Pat many years later, aged 47.

Ken Spickett died in 1970. David Spickett, the fourth generation, took over the running of W Spickett and Son.

In 1987, when W Spickett and Son had been in business for 150 years, David's son Andrew joined him and they both ran the business until 2000, when David retired due to ill health.

W Spickett and Sons was bought by Pigeons of Cardiff, and is now known as Vale Funeral Services, run by Lyndsay and Nicola Ellis.

The Vale of Glamorgan Council Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 The Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes (Wales) Regulations 2004 The Town and Country Planning (Local Development Plan) (Wales) Regulations 2005 Notice of Further Matters Arising Changes to the Local Development Plan Vale of Glamorgan Local Development Plan 2011 - 2026

The Vale of Glamorgan Council under the provisions of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 is required to prepare a Local Development Plan (LDP). The LDP will, upon adoption replace the current Unitary Development Plan and form the basis for decisions on land use planning in the Vale of Glamorgan. The Vale of Glamorgan LDP is currently undergoing Examination and the Council is consulting on a number of proposed changes that have emerged as a result of matters arising during the additional hearing sessions of the Examination. The consultation period will run from Friday 17th February to midnight on Friday 31st March 2017.

The proposed changes relate to elements of the LDP written statement and the proposals map and are set out in the Further Matters Arising Changes (FMAC) Schedule (2017). Copies of the FMAC Schedule, together with the FMAC Sustainability Appraisal (SA) (incorporating the Strategic Environmental Assessment) and FMAC Habitats Regulation Assessment (HRA) documents can be viewed on the Council's website at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk/ldp. Paper copies are also available for public inspection during normal opening hours at the following locations:

- Vale of Glamorgan Council, Civic Offices, Holton Road, Barry, CF63 4RU
- Vale of Glamorgan Council, Dock Office, Barry Docks, Barry, CF63 4RT
- Vale of Glamorgan Council, Alps Depot, Quarry Road, Wenvoe, CF5 6AA
- All Vale of Glamorgan Libraries.

Representations in respect of the FMAC Schedule, FMAC SA and FMAC HRA should be sent in writing (preferably on the representation form) to the LDP Team, Vale of Glamorgan Council, Dock Office, Barry Docks, Barry, CF63 4RT. The form for making representations is available at the above locations or online at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk/ldp. Completed representation forms may either be sent to the LDP Team at the above address or emailed to ldp@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk.

Representations (including support and objections) at this stage must only relate to the Further Matters Arising Changes. The consultation is not an opportunity to add to previous representations or to make new representations on parts of the Plan that are not subject to change. Any such representations will be disregarded as they should have been made during the earlier stages of Plan preparation. All duly made representations will be considered by the Inspector appointed to examine the soundness of the Plan. Please note that all duly made responses will be made available for public inspection and cannot be treated as confidential.

For queries regarding the Examination, please contact the Programme Officer Sarah Kneveit on 01446 704610 or email programmeofficer@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk

Further information on the Further Matters Arising Changes consultation is available on the Council's website www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk/ldp or by contacting the LDP team by email: ldp@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk or phone: 01446 704663.

GEM READERS' LETTERS EXTRA

Female sculptors left out... but not by the Glamorgan GEM

I WAS pleased to see a column about the current Sculpture Cymru show at Dyffryn Gardens in last week's GEM.

But on reading further, found that although 10 sculptors are taking part, only three men were mentioned.

I quite understand that not all the works can be described in a short piece, but would like to point out that six of the 10 are women. It is always hard to promote the work of women artists – even the Tate is having to reconsider its hanging policy to be more equal – but when four of the women are from the Vale and Cardiff, i.e. local sculptors, it seems remiss when our own local paper leaves them out! The work will be in the gardens until September – I hope many local people will go along to see it.

Gwyneth Price (Sculpture Cymru), Llantwit Major.

Editor's note: The GEM was given the names of only three sculptors – Lee Odishaw, Glenn Morris and John Harris – and a brief description of their work by the Marketing and Communications department of Dyffryn Gardens.

Needed by Christmas tree recycling scheme

I WISH to bring to your attention to the fact that the Vale of Glamorgan's Christmas tree recycling scheme was not as successful as indicated in the local press.

As advised by the council, I put my tree out the night before, ready for collection, only to find on my return home from work that the tree was still outside my house.

I rang the Vale helpline, to be told that they didn't collect my tree as the lorry was full, due to the number they had already collected.

I was told it would be picked up as soon as possible, or at the next recycling collection.

Yet again, the tree was still outside my house a week later, so I rang the Vale helpline again – where this time I was given a reference number with regard to my complaint, and told the tree would be collected no later than January 31.

At the time of writing to you, the tree is still outside my house. I would take it myself to the recycling centre but my car is not big enough.

Rachel Richardson, Barry.

Solicitors waive Will fee so people can donate to Ty Hafan

Ty Hafan provides a loving and supportive environment for children who need it most.

A CHILDREN'S hospice has teamed up with solicitors across south Wales to offer a free Will-writing service.

Throughout March, Ty Hafan's Write a Will campaign will see local solicitors waive their standard fee for helping prepare a Will for clients, in return for a small donation to the charity.

Kath Jones, legacy and individual giving fundraiser at Ty Hafan, said: "A Will is the only way to ensure your wishes will be honoured as you intend and protects your loved ones from the added stress of resolving financial and legal issues.

"One-fifth of the services provided to families are funded thanks to gifts in Wills.

"By taking part in our 'Write a Will' campaign, you'll not only be securing your wishes, but also be securing the future of life-limited children in Wales."

The Will-writing service will be provided by your chosen solicitor for a suggested donation of £50 for a simple Will or £75 for 'Mirror Wills'.

There will also be an option of leaving a gift to Ty Hafan in your will, to help the charity continue providing care and support to families who need it.

For more information about the Write a Will campaign, visit www.tyhafan.org/writeawill or call 02920 532 255.

Mayor's cookbook wants recipes!

THE Mayor of the Vale of Glamorgan is publishing a charity fundraising cookbook on March 1, and wants local people to contribute a recipe.

"I have decided (due to popular demand), to donate my own award-winning Welsh cake recipe – until now a closely guarded secret!" says Coun Stuart Egan.

Each year, the Mayor of the Vale undertakes fundraising for his/her chosen charity. This year is no exception, and Coun Egan has been raising funds for the Llandough Hospital Orchard charity project and the Penarth and District Lesotho Trust.

The Llandough project is the first of its kind in Wales; 17 acres of land at the rear of Llandough Hospital will be converted into a community orchard and garden.

The Mayor explained: "The project will be mapped by a team of educationalists and wildlife experts, spearheaded by wildlife presenter Dr Rhys Jones from Cardiff University. So far, donations have helped to purchase trees, seeds, seats, tools, and sheds. The project will make a huge difference to staff, patients and visitors of all ages and abilities.

"PADLT (as it is affectionately known), organises and supports visits from Wales to Lesotho. The kingdom of Lesotho is about the same size as Wales, is over 1,000 metres above sea level and is entirely landlocked, being surrounded by South Africa.

"In the past 10 years PADLT have supported grants for health and schooling and all ages of the group have visited regularly to undertake work themselves. All concerned have described PADLT as life changing."

Please reply with your recipe (by February 14) to: the Mayor's Office at the Town Hall, King Square, Barry, CF63 4RW, or by email to: jmebrown@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk.

You will need to include your name (and if possible, a personal story about the dish and why it is so great!). Your recipe can be for a starter, main course, pudding, cake, biscuits, jam or pickle.

ValePlus minibus unveiled by AM

Jane Hutt AM with ValePlus service users, staff and trustees.

VALEPLUS has been fundraising since January 2015 to raise money for its new mini bus.

The organisation provide users with access to community facilities such as the college, library and parks; and during the weekend access to leisure activities, and access to transport is vital for this service.

Jane Hutt AM visited ValePlus to take part in their unveiling ceremony.

She said: "I was delighted to take part in the ceremony and congratulate all of the hard work the fundraisers have done in order to raise money for the new bus. ValePlus is such a valued service in our community and it is wonderful that they will be able to continue their work."

T9 bus service is 'on the up', according to Welsh Government

THE much-criticised T9 bus service to Cardiff Airport is on the up – driven by higher passenger numbers – says a new report.

The T9 bus service linking Cardiff with Cardiff Airport has experienced its best year on record, figures* released by Welsh Government have shown.

Quarterly figures up to September 2016 show an average of over 13,200 passengers a month used the service in the last year, with month on month growth every month since June 2014.

The Welsh Government Economy Secretary Ken Skates said: "Cardiff Airport is one of the fastest growing airports in the UK and continues to go from strength to strength.

"I've been clear that a reliable, frequent bus service linking the airport to Cardiff and beyond is key if the airport is to reach its full potential, and it's encouraging to see that popularity of the T9 service has risen alongside the growth of the airport.

"The airport continues to work hard to increase destinations, routes and possibilities on offer and I look forward to the T9 continuing to form part of this offering and building on these positive passenger trends."

Debra Barber, CEO at Cardiff Airport added: "An express bus service is vital for a capital city airport and we are hugely encouraged by the growth of the T9, and are keen for opportunities to link the airport to west Wales to be explored.

"As an airport we have huge ambitions for growth and improved surface access, including bus, road and rail links, is critical in helping us achieve this."

* The figures are taken from an automatic passenger count used on Traws Cymru buses

SSAFA appeals for volunteers

SSAFA, the Armed Forces charity, has been providing support for our troops, veterans and their families for 131 years; annually, it now supports over 60,000 people.

We provide the 'frontline' across the military charity sector through our network of motivated and resourceful volunteers who go and visit those who may require help and who address their needs.

To continue this essential work SSAFA is in real need of more volunteers in your local area.

Our volunteers deliver vital assistance in all sorts of ways – starting by visiting individuals in their homes, assessing their needs and building a bespoke package of support.

We can help with issues such as mobility, home repairs, house adaptations, household goods, homelessness, marriage breakdown, mental health problems, urgent debt support, essential food and groceries needs, clothing and to cover the training costs to help younger veterans back into work.

Volunteering for SSAFA is a most rewarding role. If you are able to help, please contact us at www.ssafa.org.uk/newrecruits or call 0800 032 5612. Thank you for your time and consideration. Lieutenant General (retired) Sir Andrew Gregory KBE CB, Chief Executive, SSAFA, the Armed Forces Charity.

Dyffryn cleaning company lands biggest deal in its 30-year history

DYFFRYN-based Abbey Cleaning Service has secured the largest deal in its 30-year history, creating 10 new jobs in the Vale.

The commercial cleaning company has agreed a three-year deal with one of Wales' largest skills and employment providers, Penarth-based Itec.

The six-figure contract to support the training company's seven offices across south Wales is set to increase Abbey's turnover by 20 per cent.

Director of Abbey Cleaning, Adrian Harvie, said he was delighted to be working with another Welsh company to create more opportunities for local workers.

"This new contract is the result of a lot of hard work from the management team and our staff. There is a strong family environment at Abbey, and I am thrilled to be welcoming 10 new additions to the team. "Hopefully, this is just the start, as we look to bid for more contracts and increase our network across Wales.

"We have had a recruitment drive over the past few weeks and we are now welcoming our new team members as the contract begins in early February."

Jonathan Gray, Itec's business support manager, said he was impressed by Abbey Cleaning's dedication to detail and enthusiasm for creating local job opportunities: "Supporting Welsh businesses and employees is one of our guiding principles here at Itec."

"We were impressed with the passion that Adrian and his team showed, and we know our offices will be safe in their hands."

Established 30 years ago, Abbey Cleaning is a family-run business working across Cardiff and South Wales. The company employs 31 people and supports a range of different businesses, from a solicitor's practice, through to national service centres.

LOCAL PROJECTS HIT LOTTERY JACKPOT

NEW figures show that more than £1.1 million of National Lottery funding was awarded across Bridgend and the Vale last year.

A total of 158 grants were handed out to a wide variety of local projects, including: £4,816 to Bridgend's Hospital Radio to buy a new broadcasting system, fund a radio licence and broadcasting equipment to improve the quality of broadcasting for patients and staff at Princess of Wales Hospital.

• £1,310 went to Barry Rugby Football Club minis and juniors to attract and develop new young rugby players, and to continue to improve current club members.

• £5,000 helped Wenvoe village hall replace the kitchen and improve facilities.

National Lottery Awards winners receive a £3,000 cash prize and national recognition at a ceremony broadcast on BBC One later in the year.

To nominate your favourite project in this year's National Lottery Awards, tweet @LottoGoodCauses with your suggestions or call 0207 293 3329 to find out more and to enter. Entries must be received by midnight on April 7.

POLICE PRECEPT TO RISE BY 5 PER CENT

SOUTH Wales Police and Crime Panel has agreed to increase the police precept by 5 per cent – a move which it says will allow investment into protecting vulnerable people and maintaining neighbourhood policing.

The rise equates to an extra £10.39 per year (or 20p a week) for a band D household.

Police and Crime Commissioner Alun Michael said: "The increase is essential to help maintain the service, while allowing us to protect vulnerable people and invest in the future of policing in south Wales. I could not safely recommend a lower increase to the precept.

"Central Government is continuing to cut the grant to police forces. Next year, our grant has been cut by £2.2m. In real terms, the impact of this cut is far higher when we factor in additional burdens, such as the apprenticeship levy and increased pension costs.

"We have made tough decisions for a number of years in relation to how we deliver our services and our effective forward planning, combined with the innovative way in which we work with partners to keep south Wales safe, is why we are able to continue to meet financial challenges.

"We have taken a balanced approach to soften the impact on policing our communities, while keeping the burden on the rate payer to a minimum."

As well as receiving approval from the Police and Crime Panel, the precept proposals also had the support of the Police Federation, which represents officers from the rank of Constable to Chief Inspector

Sentinel joins bus collection

THE Cardiff Transport Preservation Group based at the Bus Depot, Barry, has secured an unusual 65-year-old Sentinel bus with a Caerphilly-made body for its collection of historic vintage buses.

Late last year, a former-1944 Pontypridd partially-restored World War Two utility Bristol K6A double decker was brought to Barry from Norfolk.

Now it's the turn of a partially-restored Caerphilly-built bus from Yorkshire. This single deck bus is an example of a quite unusual manufacturer of motor vehicles, even in its heyday of the 1950s, and few survive today.

The 1950s Sentinel bus was spotted for sale by one of the preservation group's members, Clive Williams who realised it had a Caerphilly connection.

Sentinel of Shrewsbury provided the diesel engine and running gear but importantly to the Cardiff-based group, the bus with registration 'ODE 182' has bodywork designed and supplied by Welsh Metal Industries, a business based in Caerphilly.

It was new in 1952 to Edwards Bus Services of Cymmych

Pembrokeshire and became part of Mid Way Motors before it was sold on to another operator in England. The 65-year-old, 44-seat bus has been partly restored by John Hinchcliffe of Yorkshire, but it will need additional restoration to complete it.

Mike Taylor, chairman of the Heritage Bus Group said: "The Sentinel with a Caerphilly-made body was a find that we just had to secure. It is under restoration with much of the interior and frames prepared ready for panels to be added, then it will need the connecting up of all its electrical components and restoring the engine.

"Sentinel may seem to some seem an unusual make of bus. The company existed between 1902 and 1957 and they were more famous for building railway steam locomotives, and steam powered road waggon. "By 1950, the company moved into the motor age with the manufacture of lorries along with a number of buses and a few touring coaches. In 1957, it was bought by Rolls Royce for diesel engine manufacture which later became Vickers Rolls Royce. "The public will be able to see this unique Sentinel bus at the group's spring special 25th anniversary Running Day at The Bus Depot, Barry on Sunday, May 7.

'All passengers must be able to buy railway tickets'

SOUTH Wales Central AM Andrew RT Davies has expressed his concern at what appear to be disproportionate penalty fares being imposed on rail passengers on the Vale of Glamorgan line.

In a much publicised incident a woman from Barry was fined £616.30 after being unable to purchase a ticket on a train from Grangetown to Cardiff Bay.

The woman, who was pregnant at the time, claimed that the ticket machine on the station was broken, and then on the two trains she used to travel to her destination the ticket collector was unable to reach her due to overcrowding.

Mr Davies said he accepts that action must be taken to address deliberate fare dodging, but that disproportionate action should not apply to passengers who make genuine attempts to purchase a ticket but the opportunity is not available to them.

He has written to the managing director of Arriva Trains Wales, asking him to investigate the incident and ensure that if it is as has been reported, action is taken to remedy the situation.

He has also sought assurances that proper opportunities are made available for passengers to buy tickets, and that no passenger is penalised if this is not possible.

In particular, he has raised concerns relating to card-only machines at certain stations, which are obviously not accessible to all.

Mr Davies said: "No reasonable person would argue that fare dodgers should not be dealt with, but those who make a legitimate attempt to buy a ticket but find they are unable to should not be penalised."

Couple are thrilled with a suite delivery from The Place for Homes

LOCAL furniture store The Place for Homes has started to deliver free sofas and chairs to those in need throughout the Vale, using their own expert delivery teams and vehicles to undertake the task.

Rhian Francis, managing director, visited the homes of some of those benefiting from the free sofas and chairs and met some of the recipients.

"The first delivery attempt we made to Mr and Mrs Craven didn't go quite as smoothly as we hoped as the sofa and chairs that they had selected wouldn't fit through the front door!"

Not to be deterred the delivery staff measured all the access points and returned to the store with the measurements to find an alternative suite to fit in the property.

The following day the delivery team returned and successfully delivered a settee and two chairs.

Mr and Mrs Craven were thrilled, and thanked The Place For Homes for everything they had done to help.

Mrs Craven said: "We couldn't believe it when the first sofa and chairs wouldn't come in through the front door and we thought that would be it; but Rhian told us not to worry, they'd find us one that would come in and that's exactly what they've done!"

"Our children will now have somewhere to sit and we can't believe how comfortable the sofas are."

Sofas and chairs are being given to couples, families and single parent families with young children who are identified as most in need by the Vale Council.

Many of those who have benefited have no other furniture in the home.

Deliveries will continue over the next few weeks and Rhian confirmed that The Place For Homes would continue with the initiative and work with the Vale of Glamorgan Council and housing associations in the future.

Mrs Craven (left) with The Place for Homes managing director Rhian Francis who made sure that after the first suite couldn't quite make it, the second one did!

Ramblers in happy mood!

A SHORT train ride from Llanharan to Pencoed set the Vale Ramblers in a good mood for the start of Sunday's walk.

The ticket collector was a bit overawed when he opened the doors to 22 enthusiastic early morning ramblers, fully kitted with boots, gaiters, poles and backpacks, reminiscent of well-behaved but eager school children!

From Pencoed, they strode up over a wet and muddy Hirwaun Common and on to Mynydd Gaer by the old drover's road past Taf Ely Windfarm, with windmills whirling.

Passing the remains of St Peter's Church, they quickly reached Llantrisant Forest and a downhill ascent to Llanharan. Technology enticed the walkers to check the 'game' score, feeling even more elated at the final score!

Carers Trust
Carers Trust Wales are undertaking a range of consultation exercises across Cardiff and the Vale to identify the value and purpose of unpaid carers, friends and family that do the caring.

They are looking at identifying the value and purpose of Carers' Forum and how to overcome any barriers to engagement.

They are keen to meet with established groups of carers during January, February and March.

If you know a group that might be interested in being part of the consultation, or would like further information, contact Denise Dyer, engagement officer at Carers Trust South East Wales on 07712 674398.

A meeting will be held at Age Connects Cardiff and Vale Senior Health Shop, 38 Holton Road, Barry, on Thursday, March 9 from 10am to 12pm if you would like to come along and fill in a confidential survey.

Try sky diving for Barnardo's - it's truly exhilarating!

BARNARDO'S is looking for people across Wales brave enough to make a sponsored 10,000 feet free-fall tandem parachute jump in aid of vulnerable children.

Dare-devils are being asked to join the children's charity's first ever UK Sky Dive Challenge and jump at one of nine sites across the UK - including Swansea - on July 2.

The registration deposit is £70 and participants will be required to raise £395 in sponsorship.

Senior event manager at Barnardo's, Matt Short, said: "This is the first time we've challenged people across the country to take part in a sky diving event.

"It promises to be great fun and is an opportunity for those who may not have done this type of activity before to push themselves.

"All money raised will be used to help vulnerable children supported by Barnardo's, such as those as young as five who care for a sick or disabled relative or those who have been sexually exploited."

For more information and to sign up, go to www.barnardos.org.uk/skydive or call Matt Short on 0208 498 7676.

'BIG FELL' EVENT

PORKHERRY Country Park is set to host an event subsidised by the Heritage Lottery Fund.

February 18 will see the Millwood woodlands at the country park welcome Shire horses and tree-felling demonstrations, as well as other interactive demonstrations.

Visitors to the park will be able to make a bird table, take part in willow-weaving or an axe and sawing workshop, and get stuck into an array of bush craft activities.

The 'Big Fell' event is completely free of charge, with visitors being advised to park at the main car park, or walk to the Cwm Ciddi Sawmill and Millwood area of the park.

Visitors are advised to wear wellies, as the area in which the events are set to take place is likely to be muddy.

Park boasts 220 acres of woods and meadowland in a sheltered valley, which leads on to a pebble beach with spectacular cliffs. The park has a number of nature trails, picnic sites, a café, a play area, barbecue areas and mini golf course.

For more information on the Big Fell, or Porthkerry Country Park in general, call 01446 733589, or email Porthkerry@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk.

The Lego Batman Movie is a huge amount of fun!

IF The Lego Movie proved to be a surprise success back in 2014, then perhaps the standout character was even more surprising.

Amidst a raft of cameos from various characters, Lego Batman (voiced by Will Arnett) proved to be the highlight of the film, and unsurprisingly, the clamour for him to have his own film was such that, three years later, here we are with The Lego Batman Movie.

Arnett returns to voice the Dark Knight, who, depressed with his life as a playboy by day and vigilante at night, and after crime has been eradicated, is encouraged by his faithful butler Alfred (Ralph Fiennes) to throw his energy into something else; namely raising his ward, Dick Grayson (voiced by Michael Cera), which proves to be as taxing as battling the villains of Gotham City, such as the Joker (voiced by Zach Galifianakis), Harley Quinn (Jenny Slate) and many more...

After Zack Snyder's rather po-faced, super-severe take on Batman in last year's Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice, it seems the world is ready for a slightly less intense take on the Caped Crusader; after all, The Lego Batman Movie was never likely to go down the path of Snyder's Darker-than-Dark Knight.

Instead, we get a film that is a superb addition to the Batman film canon, one that is both committed to, and playfully pokes fun at, the mythology of the character and his supporting cast, and one that skewers its subject matter with loving mockery.

The only downside is that the film front loads this irreverent take on the character, and the second half of the film reverts to traditional storytelling and humour, which slightly takes the sheen off proceedings.

It's always hard to take a secondary character (as Batman was in The Lego Movie) and see if they can sustain and hold up their own 100-minute film. With Batman it's made easier by the fact that the character and story has 78 years of backstory and no end of characters (even the Condiment King) to bring into the plot.

So what you get is a story that amplifies the character we met in The Lego Movie; a loner with a strong sense of self-worth unable to see the world around him.

With such a character, spending this amount of time around him could become tiresome, but thanks to Will Arnett's ability to play the role completely deadpan it never does, and as the story amplifies Batman's issues (adopting Dick Grayson, battling the Joker and an assorted pick 'n' mix bag of adversaries) his frustration and anger become ever more entertaining.

While the underlying message of the film is all about teamwork (a noble one that kids will digest amongst the brightly coloured visuals), there are also so many gags for both grown-ups and Batman aficionados to savour.

Whether it's the mocking of the Joker's evil schemes, Batman's seeming inability to catch his most well-known villains, or subtle digs at the past films, the humour comes from a reverential angle, while the number of Batman TV series jokes show where the film's writers get much of their influence from.

It all works superbly well, but then loses its direction a little come the final third, the sharp humour that plays with the character's history is replaced by generic gags, and the plot lays on the teamwork message a little too broadly.

The oomph and fizz of earlier just lags a little (a common issue with the majority of comedy films to be fair), and the climax, while thoroughly inventive visually, just lacks the narrative invention to end the film on a high.

That said, there is much right with this film. The use of Barbara Gordon as the commissioner rather than her father is a nice note, as is her moral superiority over Batman, while the Easter eggs are a treasure trove of DC comics references that are a joy to behold.

A slightly cumbersome conclusion aside, The Lego Batman Movie is a hugely entertaining piece of work.

VERDICT - A funny film not afraid to bite the hand that feeds. The Lego Batman Movie is a wonderful watch.

Packed with enough minute detail to satisfy the most ardent Bat-fan, and working broadly enough on its own terms, it's only undone by a lag in pace come the final third; that aside, it's a superb effort. Recommended.

Barnardo's support for families of veterans

FAMILIES of Welsh Armed Forces veterans struggling to cope with civilian life are to get support from a new service being launched by Barnardo's Cymru.

The UK's largest children's charity will be providing therapeutic and practical support for families of veterans finding it hard to adjust in the community, caught in the Criminal Justice System, or at risk of falling into crime.

The Families of Veterans' Support

Service (FVSS) will be launched today at 12.30pm at the Senedd, Cardiff Bay with Carl Sargeant, Welsh Government Cabinet Secretary for Communities and Children, and Melloney Poole, head of the Armed Forces Covenant Fund, which has provided £433,000 to fund the project.

The Valley Military Wives Choir have travelled from Anglesey to provide the music.

The launch of the new service follows research by the Royal British Legion which shows that working age veterans are at greater risk of depression, chronic health conditions and poverty and are also more likely to have unpaid caring responsibilities.

Research has also found that those who experienced difficulties – such as school expulsion or having parents with drug or alcohol problems – before entering the military are more likely to be experiencing difficulties now.

Dr Sam Clutton, assistant director of policy for Barnardo's Cymru, said: "Service families are often faced with unique challenges, ranging from family members returning home with a combat injury or illness such as post traumatic stress disorder, to children having to adapt to a succession of new schools, disrupting their education and limiting their opportunities to sustain long term friendships.

"During their time in the Services there is a shared understanding of the issues that are faced by veterans and formal and informal support networks are in place, but on leaving the Forces these are often lost."

The charity has been working with the Royal British Legion and other Forces' charities, Integrated Offender Management Cymru and South Wales Police to develop a consistent pathway that ensures veterans and their families can access Barnardo's services to address multiple needs.

Barnardo's Cymru will also be working with the Endeavour veterans' wing in HMP Parc Prison, Pencoed and the veterans' wing at the new HMP Berwyn, Wrexham, to identify and offer support to families who need extra help when the veteran is serving a prison sentence.

Children with a parent in prison often struggle in school and can feel a sense of loss. They are also more likely to end up in the criminal justice system themselves and suffer from mental health issues.

The service will promote a whole family approach with an emphasis on early intervention where specific multiple support needs have been identified to build resilience in children and their families.

Ant Metcalfe, Wales area manager of the Royal British Legion, said: "The Armed Forces community in Wales make a huge contribution to the nation as a whole and have a wealth of skills and knowledge that can and do, provide huge benefits to our communities."

"Although the majority of Armed Forces personnel will transition well into civilian life, some will encounter difficulties, and it is essential the right support is in place for them and for their families. This service will provide welcome support for families who may have a wide range of support needs and we look forward to building on our joint working with Barnardo's Cymru and the other partners."

FVSS will be launched at the Senedd, Cardiff Bay on Thursday, February 9 at 12.30pm.

For further information contact Barnardo's Cymru media and communications manager Margaret O'Reilly on 029 2043 6229/07827 977830.

A case history:

Helen Cottrell knows exactly how difficult life can be for the families of veterans.

Her husband Richard, who joined the Army as a teenager, left the Royal Welsh in 2012, hoping to move into close protection work. But finding it difficult to get regular employment he fell into depression and suffered Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Things became so bad that he considered killing himself.

Helen found the stress of caring for him and her daughter, who has special educational needs, overwhelming and began suffering from depression herself.

"I was at breaking point. I had no one to talk to and explain that I needed help. Not knowing what was available or how to get help were the hardest things. Without the intervention from Barnardo's Cymru I don't know where things would have ended," said Helen who lives near Blackwood.

Helen now receives regular support visits from Karen Djohari from Barnardo's Cymru's Families of Veterans Support Service. Helen said: "It can be very difficult for military families who are used to living in a bubble with all the support from the regiment and other families."

"Once partners have left the services it can be difficult to connect with any support and that leaves people feeling very isolated; even their own families don't understand or know how to deal with issues such as PTSD."

"Richard was trying really hard to provide for the family when he left the Army but the work wasn't regular so there were months when we couldn't pay the bills."

He wasn't coping, anxiety led to depression and the return of PTSD and he wanted to do something silly. We have got through the worst of it but it's been really hard at times.

"My husband fought for Queen and country, he has put his life on the line and lost friends, he has been through a lot. But when veterans return to civilian life they often have to face stigma because they were in the military, they don't feel welcome. They can be made to feel worthless and end up locking themselves away, unable to face going to crowded places."

Karen has helped Helen in her fight to get a statement of special educational needs for her daughter and has encouraged her to return to college. Helen now has her sights on becoming a forensic psychologist.

"Barnardo's Cymru have been fantastic for us as a family. Whenever I felt things were too much for me or I just couldn't face doing something Karen would say, 'Yes you can'. She would get me through it. I feel I've known her a lifetime and she never lets me down," said Helen.

ZERO TOLERANCE DAY FOR FGM

FEMALE Genital Mutilation (FGM) Zero Tolerance Day took place on February 6 and trade union UNISON Cymru/Wales, has called for more to be done to stop the illegal practice.

A spokesperson said that as recently as 2014, the Wales FGM Forum reported that more than 600 women are living with full or partially-removed genitals in Wales.

Jennifer Griffin, UNISON Cymru/Wales organiser for Women's rights, said: "This is another abuse and human rights violation to girls. It is time to stand together and change the actions of others that affect girls and women's lives globally, on a daily basis."

"Back street surgeries and home mutilations are still going on throughout the world. The more awareness we can raise, the more victims or potential victims will come forward to help stop this ritual abuse."

"FGM is now a serious crime which results in a jail sentence but we need to do more to support the victims to report this atrocious act and help them to feel safe when reporting this abuse."

"We need to create more cultural and religious awareness for children and young girls that the ritual is barbaric, they do not have to go through this and that they can be protected."

The trade union commended the development of an NHS all-Wales clinical pathway for use with all women with FGM.

College student Briony is setting off to help the needy in Swaziland

A CARPENTRY student from Cardiff and Vale College is to travel to Africa to help an initiative which supports projects that alleviate poverty through creating opportunities for women and children.

Sixteen-year-old Briony Adams will fly out to Swaziland at Easter to volunteer for the SAFE Foundation and Positive Women, who work on a number of projects to promote social change in the country.

"I will be teaching kids to make little things out of wood that they can sell, rather than selling themselves for food or a place to sleep," said Briony.

"There are two charities involved - Positive Women and the SAFE Foundation. They're amazing and do such great work."

Positive Women is based in Swaziland and works with local organisations to bring about effective and sustainable change through healthcare and nutrition programmes and investing in creating skills, tools and opportunities that allow people to fulfil their potential.

The SAFE Foundation assists in the provision of grants of money and materials to combat poverty in developing countries. The two bodies will pay for Briony's flights, injections and accommodation.

Briony found out about the Swaziland project almost by accident.

"I don't check my email as often as I should, but one night I thought I look through them," she explained. "I saw an email to my college account asking for people who could teach carpentry skills and I thought 'I'm going to Africa!'"

"I got in touch with the SAFE Foundation and Positive Women and did my research; 15 per cent of the population are vulnerable children and they often head the household, and 75 per cent don't have a toilet. It's very upsetting."

Travelling in April, Briony will spend three weeks in a rural community in Swaziland teaching vulnerable children to make wooden items they can sell to support themselves. She aims to continue working with the SAFE Foundation when she returns.

"I'm so excited to be going. I will be able to help people who haven't had the kind of opportunities that I have had - we take things for granted and don't really realise until something like this happens and you find out about it."

TOP CHEFS PULL OUT ALL THE STOPS FOR TY HAFAN

The chefs who offered their skills to help Ty Hafan.

TOP chefs from around the UK have stepped in to raise an amazing £150,000 for Ty Hafan by cooking a memorable meal in Cardiff.

Chefs' Night Out took over the kitchens of St David's Hotel in Cardiff Bay for an exclusive night of fine food and wine in aid of the children's hospice.

The event's success brings the total raised by Chefs' Night Out to more than half a million pounds since its inception in 2010.

During the evening, each table of diners was treated to a delicious meal cooked by one of the chefs - but they didn't know who would be cooking for them until service began.

In a special twist, the stellar line-up of 15 chefs, including The Hardwick's Stephen Terry, Coast's Will Holland and the River Café's Sian Wyn Owen, offered their culinary services off-menu in an after-dinner auction.

Generous diners made bids for their favourite chef - with the prize being a dinner party for 10 at their own home cooked by the chef at a later date.

Ty Hafan is a charity close to the hearts of organisers David Loosemore and Huw Edwards, who started Chefs' Night Out to raise funds for the children's hospice and the support it provides for life-limited children and their families.

David Loosemore said: "Raising £150,000 for such a worthwhile cause as Ty Hafan is both an inspiring and a humbling experience."

"We are so grateful for the generosity of our guests, our chefs and all the helpers involved. The Chefs' Night Out family continues to grow and we hope to host many more dinners in the future."

Huw Edwards added: "We are continually amazed by not only our guests, in raising £150,000 for Ty Hafan, but also the generosity of the chefs, restaurants and their suppliers in giving not only their time but also all of their produce and wine for free. It really does make the whole event succeed."

Mair Kinsey, interim events manager at Ty Hafan, said: "Through their dedication and commitment, David and Huw have raised £600,000 in total for Ty Hafan since they launched Chefs' Night Out in 2010."

"This money makes a world of difference to the lives of children and young people with life-limiting conditions and their families across Wales."

"Thank you to David and Huw, all the chefs who have generously donated their time and skills, and of course, to everyone who gave so generously on the evening itself."

The stellar line-up of chefs included: Hywel

Jones - Lucknam Park; Stephen Terry - The Hardwick; Will Holland - Coast Saundersfoot; Mark Jordan - Ocean, Jersey; Tomos Parry - Kittie Fishers; Alistair Barsby - The Grove, Narberth; Sian Wyn Owen - River Cafe; Phil Carmichael - Berners Tavern; Juan Galvez - Marbella Club; Ludo Dieumegard - The Harbourmaster; David Kelman - Old Swan & Minster Mill; Richard Davies - Epicure; Hrishikesh Desai - Gilpin Hotel & Lake House; Andrew Birch - Fishmore Hall; Simon Padilla - Puente Romano; Hywel Griffiths - Beach House, Oxwich.

AM VISITS MUSIC IN MIND GROUP

THE Vale AM, Jane Hutt, visited the 'With Music in Mind' group in Barry on January 30.

"There was a friendly and welcoming atmosphere and the group sang a variety of songs and enjoyed socialising," a spokesperson for the group reported.

"With Music in Mind aims to improve well-being and mental health, as well as reducing stress, which are proven benefits of singing in a group. The group welcomes everyone - there is no need for any previous experience."

It was set up by Sarah Miles and Kate

Whitstone to help combat social isolation and loneliness. They, along with pianist Meryn Williams, organise singing groups in communities in south Wales.

The Barry group was formed following the success of the Cowbridge group and meets on Mondays between 10.30am and 12.30pm in the Margaret Alexander Community Centre.

The AM said: "It is a wonderful way for people to have the opportunity to sing and have fun."

If you are interested in finding out more about the group, email info@withmusicinmind.co.uk or on 07500 776 295.

The next meeting of the Llancarfan Ladies Tuesday Club is on Tuesday, February 21 at 7.45pm in Llancarfan Village Hall, when speaker Berndatte of The Emmett Technique organisation will explain and demonstrate the Emmett Technique.

It can help with a wide variety of aches and pains from golfer's elbow to headaches, indigestion in adults and for children with breathing and muscular problems.

All will be welcome; refreshments and raffle.

Councillors' surgery

THE Labour Vale and town councillors for Buttrills, Castleland and Court wards, Bronwen Brooks, Pamela Drake, Jeff Evans, Chris Elmore, Les Sword, Karl Khunell and Stuart Egan will be holding their regular, monthly advice surgery on Saturday, February 18 from 10am-11am in the Small Community Room, Barry Library, Kings Square. No appointment necessary.

Occupational therapist honoured

ABMU's head of occupational therapy has been recognised for her outstanding contribution to the profession.

Sara Forster.

Sara Forster, who is based at Princess of Wales Hospital, has been honoured with the College of Occupational Therapists' Merit Award following a nomination by colleagues.

"I have no idea who nominated me. I am delighted to have been recognised but I have always felt like I have just been doing my job, even though it is a job I love," she said.

Sara has spent the past 36 years working in Bridgend, moving there soon after qualifying and has seen the profession grow. There are now 350 staff working across ABMU.

When she first started at the old Bridgend General Hospital she was its only occupational therapist and also covered community hospitals at Maesteg, Maesgwyn, Cefn Hirgoed and Blackmill.

Sara, who has served as a council representative and as Chair of the British Association and College of Occupational Therapists, explained: "I am happy to say one of the things that has changed most during my career is the recognition the profession now enjoys."

She will receive the award, established to celebrate excellence by peers, at an event in London later this year, by which time she will have retired from post.

"I didn't ever set out to become a manager but I do still have some time for clinical work and the most satisfying part of the job is always working with patients."

Sara, who is originally from Ferryside but now lives in Cardiff, added: "What OTs do really can make a difference to people's lives and the job sees you dealing with every kind of patient - from newborns to those who are coming to the end of their life."

"Being an occupational therapist you are helping people to live the way they want to live. I am very proud of my profession and my career in it."

March will tempt us back into the garden

Time outside is a real therapy!

MARCH will soon be upon us and will hopefully bring some sunny days to tempt gardeners back into the garden.

This is the month for sowing seeds and getting the garden ready for the summer months ahead, which includes a general tidy-up and some essential pruning.

Pruning is not only therapeutic for plants, but gardeners as well – getting rid of all that dead wood and preparing for new growth and flowers.

You need to remove dead, diseased or damaged stems from roses. Shrubs and climbers will also need pruning to encourage good, healthy growth.

Seed sowing should be at the top of your 'to do' list at the moment. Give seeds soil that is wet and warm enough and off they go, and the bigger the seed the deeper it needs to be in the soil to germinate.

Some seeds can be sown direct into the ground, such as vegetables, while some prefer to be in seed trays and a slightly warmer environment to be given a good fighting chance.

March is also a good planting time for more mature plants, so think ahead to not just summer but autumn as well, and try to plan your planting for all year round colour in the garden.

For a bit of instant colour you could think about a hanging basket. A simple garden solution for March is to create your own hanging basket in the colour scheme of your choice mixing hardy annuals with small evergreen shrubs for all year round interest.

Although most baskets are planted in early spring and put outdoors after the risk of frost has passed, they can also be filled with frost hardy flowers and tough evergreens for colour over winter. Don't forget to water regularly and boost growth with a weekly liquid feed.

A plant that is perfect for winter baskets and containers is the Vinca, which is part of the periwinkle family.

Vinca minor is also a favourite with gardeners for providing ground cover and can be planted in smaller beds and borders. It's a great way of providing cover for poor, dry and slightly shady garden areas and its creeping and arching stems soon make an attractive carpet of bright green foliage.

The small sky-blue flowers appear in spring and Vinca will grow in most soil types, but like most other plants, requires good drainage.

Spring seems tantalizingly close in March and work in the garden starts to get going again.

Here are some jobs you should be thinking about this month: start to prune roses, removing dead damaged or diseased stems; tidy up the lawn; keep your eyes peeled for weeds and slugs; sow vegetable seeds and plant potatoes; start composting and conserving water; and re-pot houseplants.

SM

Soon Spring will be on its way and our thoughts turn to work in the garden.

Barry Floral Society celebrates anniversary

THIS year, members of the Barry Floral Society are celebrating the 55th anniversary of the formation of the club, so in the next few weeks members will have a full programme of events.

On February 28, Ms Beverly Clay of Rhiwbina will present a demonstration entitled 'Men, Me and Flowers'.

At 'Festive Flowers' on March 14, Rev Kevin Davies will entertain members and friends with his floral skills and chat. This will be followed by afternoon tea (with celebration cake!).

To complete the celebrations, on March 28 Ms

Sally Taylor, area demonstrator from Yate will be 'Sallying Forth Once Again'.

All meetings will be held at the St Nicholas Hall, St Nicholas Road, Barry commencing at 2.15pm; new members are always welcome.

Over 55 years the members – besides enjoying many happy hours visiting gardens and participating in shows and flower festivals – have each year donated to a local charity; it amounts to thousands of pounds over the years.

This year the chosen charity is Innovate Organics which supports the organic garden centre, cultivated by people with special needs which is based at The Amelia Trust Farm near Barry.

REINVENTING THE CONSERVATORY ROOF REPLACEMENT & CONSERVATORY UPGRADE OPTIONS

As few as five years ago, polycarbonate would have been the main choice for a conservatory roof.

While letting plenty of light in, some found that their conservatories could be too bright and in summer, while cool in winter.

Building technology has moved on, and there are now two solid roofs that can convert a conservatory into a room with a more stable ambient temperature.

The first is a lightweight, 'tiled' roof that takes its design cues from the slates and tiles found on most UK houses.

Created using aluminium panels, with Kingspan insulation, these conservatory roofs can achieve a u value of just 0.16, similar to that of a normally constructed, modern roof.

With this roof option, the interior of the conservatory can include a plastered ceiling with down-lighters or even roof windows for ventilation and sky views.

For a more contemporary feel, the LivinRoof combines sleek lines and thermal efficiency to create something that looks very contemporary.

With the LivinRoof, entire panels can be glazed to create a hybrid solid and glass roof allowing you to choose where to have shaded areas and where to have more light.

Either of these roofs can be retrofitted to an existing structure, to make your conservatory more comfortable in the height of summer and depths of winter.

Activ Glass roof

A straightforward upgrade for those who want to keep an uninterrupted view of the blue skies up above is to opt for a modern, low emissivity (low-e) 'Activ', energy efficient glass roof.

Helping to reduce the variations in temperature associated with older, traditional glass or polycarbonate roofs, 'Activ' low-e glass helps cut solar glare, protect furniture from fading and keep heat in during the winter months.

'Express Yourself! and win a prize' – says children's author

author Sarah Kilbride is reminding local children that there is still time to 'express themselves' this half term, in a top writing competition hosted by National Express.

Author Sarah, who is judging the short story competition – 'Express Yourself' – is calling on young people aged seven to 16 to put pen to paper during the half term holidays and enter the competition, as the deadline has been extended until the end of March.

Launched in celebration of its onboard entertainment system VUER (View, Unwind, Enjoy, Relax), the winning stories (with the theme of 'happy travelling'), will be published in an online storybook, in 'VUER', for passengers to enjoy as they travel. Each winner will also receive a £500 cheque.

Sarah Kilbride, known for her Princess Evie's Ponies books, will be judging entries from Bridgend.

She said: "I'm so excited to be involved with Express Yourself. I work with lots of young people and am always inspired by their imagination and creativity."

"If you know someone who loves stories, tell them to sharpen their pencils and get scribbling – this competition is a fantastic opportunity to get their work read and win a prize!"

Entrants should write a story of up to, but no more than, 1,000 words, and the competition closes on March 31. See www.nationalexpress.co.uk/author-for-details.

DOG OF THE WEEK: Shy Jasmine

DOGS
Trust in Bridgend's Dog of the Week is Jasmine, a lovely Shar-pei.

Jasmine is four years old and can be a little shy to start with, but once she gets to know you, she is really friendly.

Her forever home needs to continue with her off-lead exercise, training to recall and socialising with other dogs. Jasmine loves her treats and will work for her food.

She will need a consistent routine with plenty of environmental enrichment. Jasmine's home needs to be adult only with no visiting children, so if you are a fan of Sharpei then Jasmine is the girl for you.

If you would like any more information contact us on 01656 725219 or visit our website.

COMPETITION HIGHLIGHTS PHOTO SKILLS OF PYLE AND PORTHCAWL CLUB MEMBERS

PYLE & Porthcawl Photographic Society was recently treated to two wonderful presentations on landscape and travel photography by Roy Carr and Heidi Stewart, both sharing their amazing images.

Also, the club recently held its 'Club Competition Two', which was split into two sections, prints and digital images, with a trophy for each. Members could enter two images in each competition.

Rob Mitchell judged both competitions, and not only awarded the points, but also provided an excellent critique on each image.

The winner of the Print Trophy was Richard Craze with 'New Flats Feature'. In second place was David Jones with 'Foggy, Foggy Night'.

Third place was shared between Richard Craze with 'The History Man' and Richard Jenkins with 'Watering the Flowers'.

The winner of the Digital Trophy was Philip Harrowing with 'My Old Friend'. Second was shared between two images, 'Hawk slow panning' and 'Wings', both by Geoffrey Baker.

Third place was shared between Heather Roper with 'Yesterday' and Richard Craze with 'Kendo'.

Congratulations to both Philip and Richard for winning the competitions and a big thank you to all participants for making it such an interesting and entertaining evening.

Our programme is available at www.pyle-porthcawl-ps.co.uk. We welcome new members of all ages and skill levels, so if you have an interest in photography, join us on Thursday evenings at 7:30 at St Clare's School, Newton. GB

Ramblers enjoy Goodrich Castle

ON a blue-skied sunny morning, walkers joined Joy from Penarth and District Ramblers overlooking the ruined Goodrich Castle.

The castle was deliberately damaged during the English Civil War so it could no longer be used as a fortress after a battle between the Cavaliers and Roundheads, which the latter won.

Making their way to the church of St Giles with its tall spire, a journey by road, field and steps brought them to The Folly on Coppet Hill for morning coffee while enjoying brilliant views.

Descending to the banks of the Wye, the next stop was to view the monument to John Whitehead Warre, a 15-year-old tragically drowned in 1804, before passing a herd of Hereford cattle and calves and roe deer gracing the hilltop at The Green.

Moving on past the disused bridge which carried the Ross and Monmouth Railway over the Wye to the old Lydbrook Station that served Edison Swan Cable Works, lunch followed at Welsh Bicknor near St Margaret's Church, now in private ownership.

Continuing along the riverbank, very muddy undulating paths through Thomas Wood led them to the road at Kerne Bridge and Flanesford Priory, established as an Augustinian Priory in 1346 by Sir Richard Talbot, Lord of Goodrich, which was hit badly during the Black Death, and dissolved in 1537. It is now holiday accommodation, before the short journey back to Goodrich village.

Neath Valley

Robin and Pepper and four walkers journeyed to the Upper Neath Valley, parking just north of Ystradfellte by the River Llia and the surrounding mist soon melted away to produce a cold but dry day.

Tramping along the road before crossing onto Ystradfellte Common where a hunt was taking place, tracks led them on past craggy rocks and many sinkholes on their journey to Porth yr Ogof, where the River Mellte mysteriously disappears underground at the cave entrance.

Previous heavy rainfall had swollen the River Mellte and heading downstream and across a footbridge led them to the impressive fall of Sgwd Clun-gwyn or White Meadow Fall crashing into the valley below.

Heading across the valley to the gated bridge of Pont Rhyd-y-Cnau led them across the Nedd Fechan River for their lunch break.

Turning north beside the river on a muddy path, that posed underfoot problems in a few places before emerging into a field, the route led them onto the old Roman road of Sam Helen.

Following a good track in a north easterly direction and joining the Beacons Way to re-cross the river brought them to Maen Madoc, a standing stone some 2.7 metres high with a Latin inscription indicating 'Dervacus, Son of Justus, he lies here'.

Making their way back to the car park well-deserved refreshments followed at the Red Lion in Penderyn on the journey home.

On February 19, meet at 9am at Cogan Leisure Centre for a 13-mile moderate walk taking in Craig Ogwr and the Ogmere Forest; contact John R on 07484 844 533.

'Remain supporter used selective statistics'

I DESPAIR when I read letters such as those from Ian Perry (GEM letters, February 9). Why? It is Mr Perry's lack of understanding of democracy within the UK, the selective use of statistics and the use of misleading statements?

Let us start with democracy. Eligible individuals can choose to register to vote and are then free to decide if they wish to participate in any particular election or referendum. We could have compulsory voting as in Australia but compulsion and democracy are not necessarily good bedfellows.

Turning to the selective use of statistics, as Mr Perry tells us 37 percent of people eligible to vote (in Wales) voted to leave the EU. True, but what is misleading is that Mr Perry omitted to tell us that the turnout for the referendum was 72 per cent. A huge turnout by modern standards.

By way of comparison, the turnout for the Welsh Assembly Referendum was 35 per cent, and 22 per cent of all eligible voters imposed their view that the Assembly should be given extra powers.

Perhaps Mr Perry will tell us that why he was not up in arms complaining about the lack of democracy then? Or perhaps democracy works when it suits his purpose?

Now let's turn to Mr Perry's many misleading statements. His claim that only wealthy families, politicians and political donors benefited from and supported Brexit is laughable.

I recall that most wealthy politicians and, indeed, wealthy business people (Gina Miller) springs to mind supported remain. In fact, most commentators and politicians have agreed that it was the working class (whatever that means) that voted Brexit.

Much of the business news that I have read of late, comes from American companies planning to invest in the UK – so it would be interesting to know which jobs will be taken back to the US. No doubt Mr Perry will enlighten us.

The single market is in itself nothing more than a trade protection block. The CAP which controls agricultural products in the single market has created for example, milk lakes, wine lakes, butter mountains, beef mountains and olive mountains.

The customs union of which Turkey is a member – yes, Turkey – has enabled European manufacturers to flood the UK market with components and finished goods. If you doubt it, look at the import/export figures between the UK and the EU.

The £100 million export of military technology to Turkey from the UK pales into insignificance when compared with EU export of arms to that same country. The figures run into billions of Euros.

Finally, it seems that the option of choosing any university within the EU is critical within Mr Perry's thinking. Around 550,000 students attend UK universities, and good luck to each and everyone of them. I wish each UK student studying in the EU (all 15,000 of them) every success, but is being shackled to the EU really worth the cost?

John A Turner, Rhosce.

Locals would like road to be a 'one-way street'

I WOULD like to update Dyfan Ward residents by responding to a letter printed in last week's GEM ('SPEED: Drivers need to be more considerate' February 9).

The volume and speed of traffic using Whitewell Road has been a concern for some time, and more so since completion of the nearby White Farm development.

When residents' cars are parked outside their homes, Whitewell Road effectively becomes a single lane road, with few passing places. After speaking to local residents about the inconsiderate and dangerous driving that occurs as a consequence, I as Dyfan councillor, carried out a door-to-door survey, the results of which gave a clear indication that residents would like to see their road become 'one-way'.

Following this, I contacted the council's highways department and requested that consideration be given to this idea. I have since been in constant dialogue and attended several meetings with the highways team, the managing director and the Leader of the Council; two of which have taken place on site so that local residents' concerns can be made clear.

As a result, highways engineers are this week (February 13) carrying out junction observations in peak periods for both the Whitewell Road/White Farm junction and the Whitewell Road/Coleridge Crescent junction.

They will then undertake a vehicle speed and volume survey for Whitewell Road in the first week of March, when the schools have returned after the half term break and traffic flows have returned to normal.

I will keep local residents updated on progress and I hope that this letter offers reassurance that the council is acting upon their concerns.

Councillor Anthony G Powell, Dyfan ward, Vale Council.

Saddened that hedgerows were 'destroyed'

O N Sunday I walked my dog at Sully beach and, having not been there for a while, I was shocked and saddened to see the destruction of the trees and hedgerows along the cliff edge and next to the Lavernock Caravan Park, which were home to lots of varieties of wildlife including rabbits and birds.

This destruction was to make way for a walkway along the cliff top, around the edge of the football/rugby field and back onto the road.

I'm totally in favour of making the coast accessible to all but what I'm not in favour of is that this walkway is a single track.

When this walkway is finished, should a pushchair and a wheelchair going in opposite directions meet along the path, there is not enough room for them to pass each other.

This would mean that either one of people pushing the chairs would have to walk backwards to where they came from until more room is made (the path is the same width for almost the entire length of the walkway) or lift and manoeuvre the chair on to the grass so the other people can get past.

Both of these are impossible and ridiculous (I was also told by another dog walker, that there is news of putting a fence up along the path, so we won't be able to access the grass).

What are the Vale Council thinking – do they not realise that some people are in wheelchairs, or that parents would like to take their children in pushchairs along this coastal path?

I'm normally in favour of the council, and I think they work hard for us, but this is one of their worst plans; so come on Vale Council, make this right – replant the trees and hedgerows, don't put up the fence, and make the path wider and accessible to all.
Mrs Amy Jackson, Barry.

Jonathan urges: 'WEAR RED FOR WALES – AND FOR VELINDRE'

C ANCER will affect one in two people born after 1960 – it's a simple statistic that drives home the battle we face against this terrible disease, and I am writing to ask for your support.

Velindre Cancer Centre's aim is for everybody in Wales to wear red on Friday, March 10, when Wales take on Ireland in the RBS Six Nations at Principality Stadium, Cardiff.

For this day only, Velindre will change from its traditional green colour to red in support of the Wales rugby team.

Taking part couldn't be simpler. Simply ask your staff, pupils, colleagues, friends, family etc to wear red on this day and donate a minimum of £1, then send your cheque made payable to: Velindre Fundraising, Velindre Cancer Centre, Whitchurch, CF14 2TL or donate online.

As well as the money you will raise from taking part, the publicity you will attract is also very important for us as we want as many people as possible to see your fundraising efforts.

Share your photographs, posts and videos on Twitter @Velindre; Instagram velindre_fundraising; Facebook VelindreFundraising; tagging us in, so everybody can see what an amazing thing you're doing for Velindre!

Be as creative as possible, as the best ones will be featured in the media and next year's campaign!

If you would like to take part, please complete a registration form from the website before March 10, so we can register you and announce your participation on social media.

Jonathan Davies OBE, President, Velindre Cancer Centre.

Favourite ports and paddlers

BY BRIAN KEITCH

Local favourite Cardiff Queen making a typically brisk departure from Penarth pier in the 1950s on a sunny afternoon.

RECENTLY, I described the Bristol Channel tsunami of 1607, but here I want to recall how in later centuries thousands of people popped down to Penarth, Barry and Porthcawl for a cruise to Combe, Lynmouth, Minehead – or even further afield to Clovelly and Lundy.

Then again, there was also Weston super Mare.

A cruise on the paddle steamer Cardiff Queen or quasi-sister Bristol Queen was a must any summer. For an afternoon or evening out many people looked no further than Birnbeck pier.

Steamers usually stopped at Penarth pier on the outward journey from Cardiff (though it was possible to catch the train to Barry pier station on some sailings when the tide prevented a call at Penarth pier).

Among the earliest packets to call at Cardiff were the paddle steamers Glamorgan and Bristol (the Swansea to Bristol packets) in 1823. The only inconvenience was that the 'port' of Cardiff embarkation was Sully!

What were the fares? Sully (Cardiff) to Bristol, six shillings (30p) – aft cabin, four shillings (20p) – fore cabin and two shillings (10p). They ran three times a week.

For just a bit more you could, of course, travel to Swansea. The owners at the end of 1824 stated that the journey from Swansea to Bristol had averaged less than nine hours! When facilities were improved at the port of Cardiff proper, the Sully call was, not surprisingly, abruptly abandoned.

The only time steamers have come to Sully since is on one of the rare occasions MV Balmoral was – on a very high tide – chosen, for some reason, to sail past Sully Island on the landward side enabling passengers to wave at people on Swanbridge beach!

Penarth pier was built and opened in 1894, allowing excursion steamers to call, but since 1857 the little paddle steamers Kate (1), Kate (2), Iona, and a small screw vessel La Belle Marie had chugged back and forth when the tide allowed.

The construction of a pedestrian tunnel under the Afon Elai in 1899 caused the old ferry to fade away in October 1903 after 46 years of service. No doubt regular rail services from Penarth – opened in 1878, Cogan in 1888, plus Solomon Andrew's omnibuses – didn't help.

Our photograph from yesteryear (above) sees local favourite Cardiff Queen making a typically brisk departure from Penarth pier in the 1950s on a sunny afternoon – probably bound for Weston or Minehead.

Built at Fairfield's yard on the Clyde in 1947, Cardiff Queen was destined to be the last sea-going paddle steamer ever built (PS Waverley was launched earlier and the largely rebuilt PS Medway Queen is waiting re-entry to service – but was built in 1924 by Ailsa shipbuilding at Troon).

Cardiff Queen and her quasi-sister Bristol Queen operated for scarcely 20 years before being scrapped. In addition to her Bristol Channel duties, Cardiff Queen also put in two years' service on the south coast of England in 1952 and 1953. For the record Cardiff Queen could carry in excess of 1,000 passengers and could skip along at 18 knots at a push!

Cardiff Queen had a number of 'firsts'. The Second World War claimed no fewer than seven of the 11 steamers of the White Funnel fleet, three during the evacuation at Dunkirk alone with the result that new steamers were built – the two 'queens' – Bristol in 1946 and Cardiff in 1947. The same conflict saw the closure of some piers.

Among Cardiff Queen's 'firsts' was a call by a passenger ship at Ventnor Pier, Isle of Wight after the war in 1953. She was to call at Lynmouth in 1954 re-opening the port of call after the disastrous floods there in 1952.

A few days later she re-opened the Bideford sailings after a gap of 30 years, also the same year saw the ship visit Tenby. In 1955 she re-opened sailings to Milford Haven and was the first steamer to call at Mumbles in 1956 after the pier was rebuilt.

Cardiff Queen made her final sailing to Lundy on September 21, 1966 with 400 passengers, never to sail again. Efforts to convert the ship into a nightclub on the River Usk, Newport, failed to materialise and she was scrapped upriver at Cashmore's yard in 1968.

Coaching delivered in the Welsh language

SPORT students from Cardiff and Vale College are set to share their coaching expertise through the medium of Welsh following special training from the Urdd.

Eight sports learners have taken part in the Urdd's specialist 'Level 2 Sport Leaders Award' and now need to provide 10 hours of coaching in Welsh to become fully qualified.

All of the learners have found coaching opportunities and complete their hours in Welsh medium primary schools and during rugby and hockey competitions with the Urdd.

Once qualified, the eight students will be able to coach in Welsh with the Urdd at Welsh medium schools, after school clubs, holiday camps, galas and competitions.

Urdd sports development officer, Gareth East, said: "It was great working with Cardiff and Vale College and lovely to see a lot of good coaches in the college. Everyone fully participated in every aspect of the qualification and to a very good standard. We look forward to the students coaching with us in the future."

The Urdd aims to provide opportunities for children and young people to develop personal and social skills through the medium of Welsh.

The Level 2 Sport Leaders Award is a nationally recognised practical qualification that enables learners to lead groups of people in sport or activities in Welsh. It teaches generic leadership skills such as organisation, planning, communication and teamwork through the medium of sport.

Level 3 public services student, 18-year-old Kia Sparkes, said: "We are very grateful to the Urdd for giving us the opportunity to gain an extra qualification which will help us with our employment prospects as well as giving us experience in the coaching world. Being able to use and practise our Welsh is a great help and has really boosted our confidence to keep using the language."

CAVC Welsh Curriculum co-ordinator Nicola Buttle explained: "Establishing such strong links with the Urdd has created an abundance of Welsh medium opportunities for our learners. It has been hugely beneficial in many ways."

"It supports our bilingual ethos and Welsh medium provision within sport at CAVC, provides practical coaching sessions through the medium of Welsh across Cardiff and the Vale and also raises awareness among our learners of how advantageous the Welsh language and bilingualism is within the sporting world."

Food hygiene ratings show up the Vale

A NEW study has revealed which council areas have the best and worst food hygiene ratings at pubs, bars and clubs.

obliged to clearly display the rating that they receive under the scheme, with England to follow suit from 2019.

The Food Standards Agency website holds the data from inspections carried out by each local authority under the Food Hygiene Ratings Scheme. Every business that serves pub food is awarded with a hygiene rating between 0 (urgent improvement necessary) and 5 (very good).

Out of a total of 356 council areas in England, Wales and Northern Ireland (Scotland is subject to a different rating system), the Vale of Glamorgan had the fifth highest percentage of pubs and bars with a poor rating of 0, 1 or 2; with 17 per cent of its 135 rated businesses requiring improvement.

Newham was the worst ranked council district, with 19.2 per cent of businesses rated 2 or below, whereas Lisburn and Castlereagh City was the best, with 100 per cent scoring 4 or 5.

Linda Firth, a director at the company LoveMyVouchers.co.uk, said: "The study aimed to raise awareness about the ratings. There is nothing better than a good pub lunch, but as budgets tighten, food hygiene standards could become increasingly important for diners choosing where to spend their money."

Make every daffodil count for Marie Curie

MARIE CURIE launched their annual Daffodil Appeal at the Senedd on Wednesday, February 8.

The appeal is now in its 31st year, and South Wales Central AM Andrew RT Davies joined forces with senior nurse Judith Thursfield and rapid response team members Helen Wilson and Donna Jarvis to encourage Vale residents to support the campaign.

Mr Davies has encouraged local residents to help the charity by wearing a Marie Curie daffodil pin – available from Superdrug, Spar and Savers stores across the Vale.

He pointed out that money raised would be of great benefit to the charity's Cardiff and Vale Hospice – located in Penarth.

Mr Davies said: "It is a pleasure to see the great daffodil appeal is still going after 31 years and I'd encourage all Vale residents to support it."

Simon Jones, head of policy and public affairs for Marie Curie Wales, said: "To have the support of Andrew RT Davies makes a huge difference to Marie Curie."

"With his help we are able to raise awareness about what we do and reach more people who need us."

"Our services rely on charitable donations, so I'd like to express a heartfelt thank you to everyone who gives a donation and wears a daffodil pin this February and March."

"The money raised from the Great Daffodil Appeal will help Marie Curie Nurses provide care and support to people living with a terminal illness, and their loved ones, in homes across Wales, as well as in the charity's Cardiff and Vale Hospice in Penarth."

PENARTH HOCKEY CLUB ROUND-UP

AS the 2016-17 season heads into its final weeks, Penarth Hockey Club continues to push for GoCrea8 League promotion on three fronts, with the first XI chasing a second straight league title having taken over at the top of Conference North less than a year after dominating De Cymru & The Marches 1.

SWINDON 1, PENARTH 2
Penarth travelled to promotion rival Swindon for a game rearranged after the first attempt to play was denied by a frozen pitch at the end of January.

With little to divide the top teams in Conference North, this was arguably both teams' biggest game of the season to date, as Penarth looked to move clear at the top of the table and Swindon sought to quickly reignite their bid after losing to second-placed Robinsons the previous day.

On a bitterly cold morning, Penarth seemed to struggle with both the conditions and early start as Swindon made the better of the initial exchanges. Playing the ball around sharply, some clever first time passes left Penarth chasing shadows, and the home side deservedly took the lead after 10 minutes, breaking down Penarth's right and firing the ball in to the 'D' to find an unmarked attacker to sweep home and give goalkeeper Adam Putt no chance.

The early setback only served to stoke the Bears' fire, and the visitors finally started to warm to the challenge set by their rivals.

Vice-captain Chris Baker began to grow more and more into the game and, picking the ball up in the final third, drove into the Swindon area to fire a warning shot just wide on his reverse stick.

The hosts failed to take heed and continued to leave Baker far to much time and space and, this time, he made them pay. Picking the ball up in midfield and peeling strongly into the 'D', Baker's goal-bound effort was converted by Tim Urlings, whose deft touch deflected the ball high into the net to level the scores before half-time.

Tactical changes by player-coach Ben Croxall tweaked the formation during then interval and, despite giving Baker man-marking duties against Swindon's play-maker, allowed Penarth to take more control in the second half.

Although Swindon continued to pass the ball around nicely, possession was largely in their own half, with very little penetration. Penarth, in contrast, were happy without the ball, but enjoyed greater field territory and their more direct approach in possession created the better moments.

The Bears had one more bit of magic up their sleeve and a direct feed into the 'D' found Urlings, who produced another sublime touch to deflect the ball under his right shoulder and into the bottom corner to draw jubilant celebrations from the visitors.

With little time left for Swindon to hit back, Penarth saw out the game comfortably, keeping hold of the ball and pinning the home side deep in their own half to claim a memorable win and take sole possession of top spot in the division, as well as all but eliminating Swindon's promotion hopes.

PENARTH 10, WHITCHURCH A 1

Prior to their trip to Wiltshire, Penarth hosted Whitchurch at Stanwell School, knowing that they could not afford to take their local rivals lightly, but also well aware that goal difference could be key in a closely-fought Conference North title battle.

Whitchurch arrived with a team full of youth, but Penarth's superior experience quickly won the day – and in ruthless fashion. With barely five minutes played, the tie was effectively over after three rapid-fire goals left the visitors shel shocked.

The opening brace came in similar fashion, with captain Tom Haran first finding David Joyce and then Chris Baker at the back post to score with Penarth's first two attacks, before Laith El-Khatib added the third with an unsavable drag flick high to the keepers right.

Penarth were now completely dominant in every department, and fired home another four before the half was out. The same formula as the opener accounted for Joyce's second, with Haran again finding the striker unmarked at the back post to sweep home first time.

Tim Urlings was next on the scoresheet with perhaps the pick of the goals as, put through on goal, he showed great composure in waiting for the keeper to go to ground before producing the deffest of touches into the net and continue his march up the goalscoring charts.

El-Khatib netted a second after finding time in the 'D' to smash in Penarth's sixth, before Andy Willemite made it seven at the break with a first time touch.

With the game won and half an eye firmly on the Swindon tie, Penarth took their foot off the gas in the second period, but still managed to net three further goals, with Joyce rounding out his hat-trick before Aaron Fulton-Brown got forward from right back to get in on the act and Baker ensured double figures with his second of the day.

The only blemish on otherwise scintillating display came via an unfortunate deflection on a Whitchurch shot that was initially going wide, which left Penarth 'keeper Simon Comfort no chance of holding on to a clean sheet as the home side romped to their biggest win of the season.

GWENT A 2, PENARTH A 10
After a tough loss to runaway De Cymru 1 leaders Cardiff University, it was vital that the second XI got their season back on track, and a trip to the newly laid pitch at Cwmbran Stadium to face mid-table Gwent proved just the tonic.

Having gained control of the game, the Bears began to exert more and more pressure on the Gwent defence and quickly identified attacking midfielder Phil Lane as their best route to success.

Able to create chances almost at will, the veteran opened the scoring in decisive fashion by firing past the hapless Gwent keeper, but the home side refused to capitulate, and hit back quickly, making the most of miscommunication in the Penarth defence to give Putt no chance with a first-time shot into the roof of the net.

The goal was a wake-up call for the men in green, forcing them to focus on the task at hand. With Gwent buoyed by the equaliser and pushing for more, there were gaps to be exploited, and Penarth did just that repeatedly as the frigid afternoon went on.

The impressive Keegan Hoare created the next scoring opportunity by winning a penalty corner after making a break down the left channel.

Having failed to convert any of the twelve such opportunities they earned against Cardiff University the previous week, however, Penarth called up veteran Dave Stevens to provide a more direct approach to the set-piece, and he responded with a perfectly dispatched strike just below the backboard to give the visitors the lead.

The Bears now held a clear upper hand, and quickly added to their advantage, winning another penalty corner via Richard Baker. This was repelled by a good save from the young Gwent 'keeper, but the rebound fell kindly for James Kidby and he clinically slotted the ball back into the bottom corner.

Hitting back so decisively after Gwent felt they had got themselves back into the game appeared to take the wind out of the home team's sails and, while they saw their hosts' play gradually unravel, the Bears dominated the rest of the first half, passing the ball with the fluency which sees them well and truly in the De Cymru 1 promotion hunt.

With some superb movement from the forward line, Lane was granted more than enough space to do what he does best, eventually completing up a first half hat-trick to send Penarth into the break with a comfortable 5-1 lead.

The second half continued in much the same vein, with the Bears quick to exploit every slip by the Gwent defence, while tightening up at the back to give Putt a relatively quiet 35 minutes.

Although the home side was allowed to double their tally with just minutes remaining on the clock, the damage had already been done at the other end, as Penarth produced another five-goal blast to put the result beyond doubt.

Continuing to score at will, the Vale side matched their first XI counterparts by reaching double figures before the final whistle, with Lane increasing his contribution to the end-of-season beer kitty with another hat-trick, interspersed with a first club goal for the influential Hoare and a second for the predatory Kidby.

With several second XI regulars missing, the game also provided an opportunity for some of the younger club members to step up and show what they could do, and Hoare's positive showing was mirrored by both Sam Salisbury, who continued to excel in the unfamiliar-to-him left back role, and 14-year old Tom Griffiths who, despite not being able to repeat the goal he registered on his second XI debut against Swansea City, showed that he will be one to watch as he climbs the ranks in coming years.

PENARTH C 1, PENARTH B 2
While the two senior sides were in action against other clubs, the third and fourth XIs engaged in the third of their four De Cymru 3 meetings, this time with the 'C-Siders' as the designated home team.

The season's two previous meetings had resulted in multiple-goal victories for the third XI, but the fourths are a much improved side and proved as much as they ran their clubmates close in episode three of Penarth's own 'El Clasico'

After 70 hard-fought minutes, the thirds sneaked a 2-1 win they just about deserved from a relatively level contest, but had to dig deep to see off the development team, having been pegged at a goal apiece at the interval.

A rare strike for Graeme Jones accounted for the 'C-siders' score, but a brace from skipper Dave Watkins ensured that the 3thrd XI maintained their push for promotion at the end of the season.

All four Penarth teams are in action again this weekend, with the first XI looking to keep up their title bid away at Chippenham, while the second XI face another must-win game for their promotion campaign, this time against Cardiff & Met 'E' at Stanwell (2pm start). The thirds follow on at home against Swansea City (3.30pm start) as the fourth XI head west to tackle De Cymru 3 leaders Swansea University.

On and Off The Turf WITH BRIAN LEE

EVAN WILLIAMS' five-year-old Skewiff racing for the first time in public landed the closing Mares' Standard Open National Hunt Flat Race (Division 2) at Huntingdon last Thursday.

Partnered by Adam Wedge Skewiff, an 8-1 chance, got home by a head from the favourite Majestic Moll with Mary Eleanor a further short head away in third place.

DEBRA'S BIG RACE WIN
Racehorse trainer Debra Hamer who hails from the Vale and who trains her horses from her yard in Carmarthen had plenty to smile about after her seven-year-old ToBeFair landed the Belfair Cash Out Handicap Hurdle in fine style at Newbury last Saturday under regular jockey Trevor Whelan.

Since she has had the plucky ToBeFair it won its first two starts at Worcester before scoring at Chepstow, Ffos Las, Chepstow again then Warwick before picking up the £12, 512 Newbury prize.

Not many horses go on to win seven races on the trot so to speak and the Cheltenham National Hunt Festival could be next for ToBeFair owned by the Down The Quay Club Syndicate a happy band of west Wales point-to-point stalwarts.

CHEPSTOW RACECOURSE SPONSORS POINT-TO-POINTS
Chepstow Racecourse, home of the Welsh Grand National, is sponsoring five point-to-points in its heartland of south Wales and along the M4/M5 corridor.

These include the Currie & Llangibby fixture at Howick near Chepstow on February 19, the Brecon & Talybont at Llanfrynach on March 4 and the Monmouthshire at Llanvapley on April 1.

Phil Bell, executive director, said: "Chepstow draws on a huge enthusiasm for jump racing in south Wales and surrounding counties, manifesting itself in attendances at some of our marquee fixtures like the Coral Welsh Grand National. Our Dunraven Bowl Novices' Hunter Chase on April 28 is the most valuable Hunter Chase in Wales and draws terrific support from the whole south west too."

"We're delighted to be supporting the sport that supports us."

David Brace OBE and MD of Dunraven Group, added: "We're very proud of the Dunraven Bowl at Chepstow and see an opportunity to build this fixture into a destination event for the point-to-point community."

EVAN AGAIN

Evan David from Llanharan, who has been in good form this season, chalked up another winner when making all the running on Andrew Pennock's Torran Na Dtonn in the hunt members' race at the Cambridge University Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases at Cottenham last Saturday.

CURRE & LLANGIBBY RACES
The first of the two Currie & Llangibby Hunt Point-To-Point fixtures takes place at Howick, near Chepstow, on Sunday (February 19) and a number horses and riders from the Vale are expected to take part.

Racing gets under way with the members' race at 12 noon.

A BRACE FOR BRACE
David Brace, who runs the Dunraven Stud at Pyle near Bridgend, took the first two races at the Albrighton & Woodland Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases at Chaddesley Corbett on Sunday.

His Doc Cody took the open maiden event and his Colorado Doc won the restricted. Both are six-year-olds and both are by his stallion Dr Massini.

Leading Welsh rider Bradley Gibbs, who recently chalked-up his 100th winner, rode both horses.

The Vale of Glamorgan Football League round-up

AFTER a couple of weeks off from action in the Vale due to the inclement weather, football returned with focus on the divisional cups.

The historic ASRS Cup of the Premier Division, dating back over 100 years saw one first round tie competed and three more quarter-final ties decided.

Runaway league leaders Vale United edged past Penarth Town in a rearranged first round match 1-0 with Jay Tominey notching his 18th goal of the campaign. This sets United up for a quarter-final against Barry Athletic this coming weekend.

In the three quarter finals played this past weekend St Athan advanced past Island Marine 4-2 with Josh Morgan scoring all four, the youngster hitting 20 goals this term.

In the Supporters Cup, contested by Division One teams, goals from Dan Morgan, Linford Harris and Ryan Hales, saw Barry Athletic B through 3-1 against Dockers.

SP Billy cruised into the semi finals

7-0 against Glenbrook while FC Pumas piped Cogan 1-0.

Division Two teams compete for the Dockers Cup, Island Marine B needed extra-time but came through 4-2 against high-flying Penarth B in a very impressive result.

Rhooose B edged out Pumas B 2-1, while league leaders Barry Saints advanced 5-0 against Barry Albion and Cadoxton Imps dispatched BV to go through to the semi-finals.

Only one league game was played this weekend, that was in Division One where Barry Belgrade were victorious 3-1 against Cardiff Airport B to close the gap on leaders Barry Athletic B to six points, but Belgrade have two games in hand.

This week sees the return of league action; the games of the day in each division see Rhooose host Cowbridge in the Premier Division, Cogan play Sully in Division One and Penarth B travel to play Barry Albion.

In the SWFA Intermediate Cup, the last remaining Vale league club, St Athan, host the only other Vale-based team in the competition, Cardiff Airport, now of the SWFA Alliance League. St Athan finished runners-up to Vale League champions Cardiff Airport last season.

MP and AM join Vale Veterans for breakfast

THE Vale's first 'Veteran's Breakfast' took place recently, with more than 70 former servicemen and their spouses meeting in the Sully Sports & Social Club.

Organised in the Vale by Tony Fitzpatrick, Veterans Breakfast Clubs have sprung up across the UK to provide an opportunity for former Armed Forces personnel to socialise over a big breakfast.

The breakfasts are also intended to present an opportunity to seek support, with charities offering services such as advice relating to further education, housing, employment and mental health.

Vale MP Alun Cairns visited the launch of the local club recently, meeting veterans and charity workers.

He said: "The Veterans Breakfast is a fantastic idea. Tony Fitzpatrick deserves great praise for ensuring that so many veterans were aware of, and were able to attend, the launch of the club.

"There was a very positive atmosphere in Sully, which I am sure will continue as the club grows and supports yet more servicemen over the coming months and years."

The launch was also attended by the Vale's AM, Jane Hutt, along with representatives of charities, including Woody's Lodge, which runs at HMS Cambria with the backing of 22 support agencies.

With more than 12,000 veterans living in the Vale, a range of support networks and services was needed, she said.

The Vale of Glamorgan Veterans Breakfast Club is open to serving and former members of HM Armed Forces and their families. It meets at 9am every Saturday at the Sully Sports & Social Club.

RHS Flower Show returns to Cardiff

THE annually anticipated floral spectacular, RHS Flower Show Cardiff will return to the city this April, embracing Wales' Year of Legends with a host of themed gardens and features to spark the imagination.

The Flower Show – which is organised by the Royal Horticultural Society (RHS) in partnership with Cardiff Council – will this year take place from April 7 to 9, and will once again fill the beautiful Bute Park with all things floral.

Encouraging visitors to embrace this year's magical, mystical theme – and inspiring showgoers to experience the rich history of Welsh legends and their connection to the surrounding landscape – featured show gardens will include Bridgend College's 'Y Meudwyaeth', inspired by the Blackfriars monastic site and heritage, as well as Chris Myers' homage to Blodeuwedd, a mythical woman made from flowers who, legend has it, was turned into an owl as punishment for trying to murder her husband.

Macmillan Cancer Support will return to the show with a contemplative garden focusing on the theme of 'legacy', and gardener Daniel Bodin will create a modern garden with a historical twist to encapsulate Welsh heritage and traditions.

Two Cardiff-based charities – Grow Cardiff and The Dusty Shed – will work together on a display made completely by novice gardeners, containing delicious edibles which support and attract wildlife.

In tune with the 'myths and legends theme', the garden will feature a castle and peasant's cottage made from upcycled pallets and rubbish.

Other features will include giant wicker bug sculptures, the ever-popular 'schools' wheelbarrow competition, demonstrations and live workshops, bushcraft and live animals.

For more information or to buy advance tickets for the RHS Flower Show Cardiff visit www.rhs.org.uk/cardiff.

Telling the story of Penarth Docks

FROM Neolithic times to the present day, Penarth Docks has a fascinating story, and well known historian Alan Thorne will present two talks in the Parish Hall, Albert Road, Penarth tonight Thursday, February 16, and then on Thursday, February 23 (both at 7pm) entitled 'The History of Penarth Docks, its site and surroundings'.

The first talk will cover the period from the Neolithic up to the 19th century, including references to the Romans, Celtic Saints, Vikings, Normans, pirates, smugglers, and a galaxy of famous engineers – eg Isambard Kingdom Brunel, Robert Stephenson, Thomas Telford and more.

The second talk will cover the friction between the Butes and the Windsors, leading to the building and opening of the Ely tidal harbour and then the dock.

Among events and people to be discussed will be the dock extension, the river Ely and the dock subway.

Trade figures, dock buildings, including the now demolished Marine Hotel, will be covered as will numerous fatal industrial accidents and deaths as well as one death by shooting and stabbing.

Of equal interest will be the armada of famous vessels that used the dock, including 'windjammers', the Cutty Sark, Elissa, Great Britain and numerous Bay Maidens.

The talk will also include numerous famous and infamous men including Captains Joseph Conrad and Edward Tupper.

The talk will close with the Depression, the dock closure of 1936, its re-opening, the American take-over, the post-war 'mothball fleet', and steady decline leading to the final closure of 1963.

The talks have been arranged by the Friends of St Augustine's.

Speaking about the talks, one of the committee commented: "This is a rare treat – Alan has a wealth of knowledge on Penarth, and having had a taste of some of the anecdotes, I know the talks will not only be informative (as usual), but also surprising!"

Entry on the door: one talk £5, both talks £8 (£4 or £7 for Friends of St Augustine's). More information at: www.friendsofstaugustines.org or Facebook 'alan on the docks'.

For further information call John Guilfoyle on 02920 706309 or Tricia Griffiths 02920 707828.

International Global Day at St Nicholas School

ON January 30, St Nicholas held a Global Enhancement Day, which involved the school participating in a carousel of activities covering the EDGC (Education for Sustainable Development and Global Citizenship) element of the Welsh Curriculum.

Class 2 was transformed into an ICT Design room, where the children researched architecture styles from different countries, applying this knowledge and their ICT skills to design sustainable 'Houses of the Future' and incorporating solar panels and wind farms as energy sources.

In addition, they had to make a house for one out of cardboard, helping them to empathise with the homeless adults and children on our streets today and the plight of refugees in Syria and across the world today.

In class 3 children completed activities on our wonderful world. They located countries personally visited and researched how our partner countries involved in the Erasmus project tackle the issues of sustainability and renewable energy.

In class 4, children explored the journey of a banana from a lowly farmer in the Caribbean, to its appearance on our supermarket shelves, calculating costs and profits to the farmer, wholesaler, importer, exporter and seller.

Lucy Bevan, a year-6 councillor stated in shock: "I can't believe if a banana cost 20p only 2p goes to the farmer, while 8p goes to the supermarket selling it. That's not fair!" This brought in the concept of Fairtrade as a solution to this injustice.

Finally, the school hall was transformed into a Lego workshop, with our deputy head teacher Mr Jones and 'digital captains' organising a range of challenging coding activities and challenges for the children to compete.

Taya Griffith, an enthusiastic digital captain stated: "I was teaching Key Stage 1 to code the 'Lego We Do' robots and Mr Jones and the other digital captains were teaching 'Lego Mindstorm' to Key Stage

Currently St Nicholas is involved in a two-year ERASMUS project with Lego Education in Billund and schools from Denmark, Germany and Hungary, who are all currently co-ordinating similar days in their schools.

In March, representatives from each of these countries will meet in Germany to begin the process of producing a scheme of work that can be accessed from the internet by any school across the country.

St Nicholas is a lead school in global learning, and part of our commitment is to provide ideas and training to our partnership schools who attended on the day. Representatives from the British Council and Mr Rob Williams, director of policy at NAHT Cymru were also in attendance and found it stimulating to see cross curricular links with maths, literacy and the DCF (Digital Competence Framework).

Report written by school councillors Tay Griffith, Lucy Bevan, Millie Jones, Tiana Scanlon and teacher representative Mr Jason Downey.

NEW UNIT A BRIDGE BETWEEN HOSPITAL AND HOME IN BARRY

A NEW residential care setting in Barry that provides a bridge between hospitals and homes has been officially opened by Coun Bronwen Brooks, the Vale Council cabinet member for housing, social care and health, and Maria Battle, chair of the Cardiff and Vale University Health Board.

The new reablement unit is based at the Vale Council's Ty Dyfan residential home in Barry and provides six short term 'intermediate care beds' for people who are ready to be discharged from hospital but who require therapy or support before they can return home.

Also at the opening was Leah Manley, who was the unit's first resident when it opened at the end of 2016. Leah, who took centre stage to cut the ribbon and officially declare the unit open, was supported at the unit after being admitted to hospital following a fall.

After completing a bespoke reablement programme she was able to return home to care for her husband and continue to live independently.

Funded through the Intermediate Care Fund, support on the unit is provided by a multidisciplinary team that consists of the Vale Council's care staff and Cardiff and Vale UHB's community resource service therapists.

Coun Brooks, said: "Our aim is to provide a bridge between hospital discharge and home for those people who require a little extra time in a supportive environment to regain their independence."

"The council's in-house care team are here 24/7 to support residents and help get them home as soon as possible. Following an assessment, they work with the resident to develop a reablement programme and then closely with the therapists to deliver this.

"By successfully providing a reablement facility we are now working effectively to tackle the issue of bed blocking that is proving so problematic across Wales."

Residents at the reablement unit receive daily physiotherapy and occupational therapy sessions, as well as health promotion talks, all of which are designed to build confidence as well as aid a return to physical fitness.

Maria Battle, said: "This reablement unit is a welcome facility in the Vale, which will help get people back home and into the local community quickly."

Being involved in their individual therapeutic plans and being supported will not only increase their independence, but also their confidence and wellbeing.

"This also means we can free up hospital beds, so that we can care for more people and keep them well."

Soroptimists aid Velindre

Hilary's assistant, Jane Stocker, Hilary, and club president Pat.

WITH the help of family and friends, members of Soroptimist International Barry and District donated 1,000 chicks to the Velindre Chick Knit Appeal.

This is the 16th year that they have supported the appeal. As well as knitting chicks, club member and local florist Hilary West, assisted by members of her staff, also fill chicks and other knitted items with chocolate eggs which they sell in the shop, with all proceeds going to the Velindre Appeal.

This year club president Pat Salt was delighted that Hilary accompanied her to Velindre Hospital when they delivered the chicks, together with £64 from Hilary's shop sales.

The exceptional demand for the chicks means that the Velindre Appeal is always looking for new knitters, and if anyone would like to get involved please telephone Julie Smith on (029) 2031 6211 or email her at julie.smith@wales.nhs.uk

To find out more about who Soroptimists are and what we do visit www.sigbi.org/barry-and-district.

Vale AM helps Marie Curie

Vale AM Jane Hutt joined forces with Marie Curie Nurses by sponsoring an event in the Senedd on Tuesday, February 8, to launch the Great Daffodil Appeal.

The appeal is Marie Curie's biggest annual fundraising campaign, and now in its 31st year. She congratulated Llantwit Major resident Geoff Mortimer at the event, who won the Marie Curie south east Wales Volunteer of the Year award.

BARRY KYOKUSHIN TAKE RECORD NUMBER OF TROPHIES FROM CHAMPIONSHIP

ON February 4, Barry Kyokushin karate club hosted and attended the IKO Welsh Championships at the Barry Memorial Hall.

Out of five Kata categories, Barry Kyokushin took first place in four of the categories.

Devon Ruckley (10th Kyu), in his first ever tournament, took first place, closely followed by fellow club member Adam Tudor who took second, and Sebastian Barczewski who took home a third place.

Ben Harris was unfortunately pipped to the post and secured fourth place.

In the second category, Kelly Shi took home first place, scoring 4 higher than her closest opponent, and Angel Benevise secured herself third place.

In the fourth category, assistant instructor Rhian Evans took home first place, with club member Claire Norman taking third.

The next event was clicker, which was dominated by Barry Kyokushin once again. In the first category, Sebastian Barczewski and Andre Espiritu battled for first and second place over the final match, with three extensions.

Sebastian just managed to gain first place in the final bout, with Andre Espiritu securing himself a well-deserved second place.

In the second category, two club members found themselves in the final to battle it out once again. Ben Bolanos won gold, with Brodie Taylor gaining a second place trophy.

In the final category, Kelly Shi was in the final and battled to win second place, with club member Bella Horsell placed third.

The next division was Cadet Knockdown. In the first division, James Shi took home gold after fights with much bigger opponents.

In the second category, Barry Kyokushin had two members fighting for third place, Justine Bolanos and Leanne Lirio. After a very close fight, Leanne Lirio secured herself third place and Justine a well-deserved runner-up after three tough fights.

The final category for the day was the knockdown. Club member Jordan Sidford was entered into Men's Lightweight and after a few tough fights, Jordan won third place after his final fight, which was well-deserved.

In Men's Middleweight, club member Paul Lambert found himself in the final, battling for first place. Paul took home a second place trophy after a difficult final fight.

Two club members, Gareth Dutton and Dryw Thompson, had been entered into Men's Heavyweight and both found themselves battling for third place against one another. After a tough fight, Gareth Dutton took third place, and Dryw was runner-up.

In total Barry Kyokushin took home 20 medals. These were seven first place, six second place and seven third place.

Club instructor, Senpai Phill Sedgmond said: "The tournament was such a great success, not only for our club, but for our Welsh Organisation. It's very hard for youngsters in Wales to travel to compete. To have one on their doorstep opens up new opportunities for them. I'm obviously exceptionally proud of the achievements of my students at this event, and their hard work has paid off by taking away 20 trophies from this. I think that might actually be a record for the 39 years our club has been going. Well done to all."

In April, Phill Sedgmond is heading to Japan to take a 3rd Dan Black Belt grading test over two days, and club instructor Rhian Evans is also going to compete in kata in the World Championships.

Barry Kyokushin Karate Club train at Castleland Community Centre on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6pm to 7.30pm for under-14s and 7.30pm to 9pm for 14 and over. Email barrykarate@hotmail.com for more information, or find us on our Facebook page.

Council pledges its support to up-and-coming sportspeople

THE Vale Council has joined forces with Legacy Leisure to support a number of talented young sportspeople across the Vale.

The Sports Academy Scheme offers successful Academy members free access to Vale Council-owned leisure facilities. By taking away this financial burden, the Council hopes that the athletes can focus on their training, and achieve their sporting aspirations.

The Council's sports & play development manager, Karen Davies, said: "The Vale is fortunate to have a large number of residents competing at a very high level, meaning there was high competition for the limited spaces available on the scheme."

"All of the successful applicants are Welsh internationals and Welsh squad members in their respective sports, with a number of them competing for Great Britain."

Eighteen-year-old Matilda Matthews, from Barry, is one of the successful Sports Academy members to have competed for Team GB.

She has competed at the Sailing 420 World Championships, and at the World Cup – a competition that Olympic silver medallist, Hannah Mills, of Dinas Powys, also competed at – as well as the Junior World Championships.

Miss Matthew's ambition for 2017/18 is to retain her GB selection, and make the step from Youth to Olympic squad.

Kristian Jones, an 18-year-old sprinter from Treos, is another local resident who has been representing Great Britain at various international events.

Mister Jones is the current under-20 100m and 200m champion, and qualified for the highly-contested British Olympic trials. He currently trains with the GB squad, and is hoping to qualify for the Commonwealth Games as an individual, and as part of the relay team.

Other successful Sports Academy members include international discus throwers, a wrestler aiming for 2018 Commonwealth Games, a GB surf lifesaving champion, a British champion sprint kayaker aiming for the Commonwealth Games and the Olympics, GB sailors, and a Tae Kwon Do international ranked second in Great Britain.

Coun. Gwyn John, Vale Council's cabinet member for Visible, Leisure and Regulatory Services, said of the Academy Scheme: "It was an extremely difficult task for the panel members to select who would take up the coveted spaces."

"It is fantastic, however, to see such tremendous talent coming out of the Vale, much of which has been nurtured by the strong sports clubs we have in our county."

"We hope that their membership with the Sports Academy will assist them in their sporting careers."

Sports Academy membership is decided yearly, with all 2017 spaces now occupied. Applications for membership for the 2018 period will be accepted around October.

On Sunday Barry RFC under-13s played their first game of the year at home against CRICCC.

Bannister scored both tries for Barry with Baron grabbing the conversions. The team were able to wear their new kit, courtesy of APEC executive travel, while Danny Borge of Artisan Kitchens helped to provide new windbreakers and after-match polo tops.

Also massive thanks to Andy Kirby, all the parents and coaches Simon Cox, Ieuan Rendell and Alex Szuchnik for their perseverance with the team.

Team: Belnoris, Everitt, Bannister, Szuchnik, Borge, Baron, Phillips Kirby, Cox, Ewington, Bradley, Beer, Carter, Hill and Jones.

If your son is interested in joining please contact 07889742153.

Barry chess team defeated in Cup

THERE were no league games this week due to the East Glamorgan Knock Out Cup.

Our sole remaining team was drawn at home to North Cardiff A. A lot of clubs do not take this seriously but that cannot be said of North Cardiff.

Ironically we were drawn at home against them at the same stage in the competition last year when we managed to win by a 3-1 margin.

This time it was not to be as Sam Jukes won on board 4, Steve Cunliffe and Matthew Parry drew on boards 2 and 3 but Matthew Davies had the unenviable task of playing the top ranked player in the tournament, Tim Kett.

Losing to Tim is not unexpected so this left the match score at 2-2. The tie break is 'bottom board elimination', which meant we lost the game 2-1.

Good luck to North Cardiff in their semi-final at home to Bridgend A.

I note from the results received that the Bridgend B team defaulted their match. This is the third match defaulted this year and brings into question the viability of this tournament; perhaps that will be discussed further at the East Glamorgan AGM in June.

All of our matches due to be played by the Barry Chess Club this week have been cancelled due to the funeral of one of our members, Windsor Lewis.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7.30 pm each Monday at the West End Club. St. Nicholas Road, Barry CF62 6QY. The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly games.

New players are very welcome to just turn up on the night but if you contact one of the club members through the website we can explain what is happening on the night you have in mind, and arrange for someone to greet you on your arrival.

For more details visit our website at barrychessclub.yolasite.com.

BRIAN LEE'S BLAST FROM THE PAST 1996

UNDER the heading 'Brace Launches Season With Treble' this is what I had to say back then: 'Bridgend businessman David Brace, who trains racehorses in his spare time, had a fine start to the Welsh season when saddling three winners and another that was disqualified at the Vale of Clettwr Hunt Steeplechases.'

His five-year-old mare Mrs Wumpkins started the winning streak when winning division two of the maiden race under Pip Jones.'

In division four, his six-year-old Gunner Boon, ridden by Evan Williams, of Llancarfan, finished ahead of Celtic Daughter, ridden by Jamie Jukes, only to be disqualified after a lengthy enquiry for going the wrong side of a flag.'

However, half-an-hour or so later, Brace was back in the winner's enclosure after his Goodies Gold, an ex-Irish 10-year-old, partnered by Jamie Jukes, scored a surprise win in the men's open race when trouncing the odds-on favourite Wolf Winter. Pip Jones was back in the saddle for Brace's third winner African Bride which took the first division of the restricted in fine style.

African Bride was the third leg of a treble for Jones who had earlier won the ladies' open race on Handsome Harvey who came home an impressive ten lengths winner.'

Jukes also notched up a treble as apart from Celtic Daughter and Goodies Gold he also won another division of the maiden on Stormy Witness who was his 50th winner of the season. Grant Lewis, who told me he had to lose around two stone before the start of the season to ride in point-to-points, said it was all worth while after riding his first ever double with Judgerger (members) and Cranagh Moss in a division of the maiden. Both his winners made all the running throughout and could soon be winning again.'

Another division of the maiden went to Jon Tudor's Just Marmalade who proved too speedy for Final Cruise. Vivian Hughes rode an excellent finish on Miss Millbrook, who overtook Metro Style on the run-in to win the confined race and Mister Horatio made all under Mark Lewis to win the second division.'

'JOHN MAKES HISTORY'

'Point to-point history was made at the Gelligaer Farmers Hunt Steeplechases on Saturday when Cardiff bookmaker John Lovell introduced his portable computer to the hunt-racing scene.'

'Punters are given a little print-out which not only tells them the name of the horse they backed but also how much they collect should their bet be a winner.'

'Lovell, who is the only bookmaker at present using the device on racecourses throughout the country said: "It prevents any disputes and will be widely used in time by when other bookmakers catch on."

He added: "This is the first time it has ever been used at a point-to-point."

Wales leading lady rider Pip Jones brought her season's tally of wins to ten with a double on African Bride (club race) and Lucky Ole Son (intermediate).'

'African Bride, who was winning for the fourth time this season, won easily by 15 lengths from My Boy Barney and Lucky Ole Son went clear five out to score by a distance from Construction King.'

'Brother Prim, backed from 20-1 to 4-1, came down when leading at the ninth. Both winners are owned and trained by Bridgend businessman

David Brace and Lucky Ole Son was his ninth winner of the season.'

Wales' first mixed open race was won by Lighten The Load, under 20-year-old Adrian Wintle, won by 30 lengths from Touch 'N' Pass with the even money favourite Sandy Beau a disappointing third.'

'Lighten The Load is owned by Phil Payne who lives not far from the course and who celebrated his 60th birthday the day before.'

'Mr Payne's fence building company provided all the portable fences used on the course. Mother of two Joanne Hawkins took the confined on Cyril Morgan's La Mezary who went clear three fences from home to win by 15 lengths from Mo's Chorister.'

Greengrocer Steve Blackwell rode his third winner of the season when making all in the first division of the maiden on Icecapade and Llancarfan's Evan Williams rode his first winner of the season when taking the second division on Andrew Hazell's 11-year-old The Fun Of It.'

'However, Mr Hazell wasn't there to lead in his first winner as he was watching Wales beating Scotland at the National Stadium! Apparently, The Fun Of It, who is trained by former jockey Jane Lewis, ran in a record 31 bumper races in Ireland.'

'Happiest man on the course was Gwylm Isaac who saw his homebred Bay Leader land a pillar to post win in the members' race. Bay Leader was confidently ridden by 18-year-old Emma Tamplin and Mr Isaac, who has horses with Jenny Pitman, was landing his first winner in 30 years!'

TUDOR TRIUMPHS WITH TREBLE TOP IN BEST-EVER SEASON'

'Jonathan Tudor landed his first treble in six years when winning on Cairneymount, Touch 'N' Pass and Harry From Barry at the Tredegar Farmers Point-to-Point Steeplechases, which saw the close of the 1996 season.'

'Cairneymount won by a distance from Pharrago after his nearest pursuer Prince Nepal had slipped up on the approach to the third last fence. Touch 'N' Pass, who like Cairneymount is trained by Robert Williams at Ogmor, scored by 15 lengths from Jamie Juke's mount Oragas.'

Harry From Barry, who got home by a length from Boddington Hill, was being strongly challenged by Good Boy Charlie, ridden by Jukes, when he fell at the last.'

Harry From Barry, a reject from Philip Hobbs' yard, is owned by Gwyn Davies and trained by Jonathan's father Billy Tudor. Jonathan, a 31-year-old from Pencoed, is enjoying his best ever season having ridden 13 winners.'

'Emma Crawford, aged 24, from Magor, notched-up her third winner in eight rides when winning the ladies' open race on her 12-year-old Mendip Music.'

'Mendip Music, who took over the lead approaching the 10th of the 16 fences, had five lengths to spare over Never Be Great and won in a time which was five seconds faster than when winning over the same course last weekend.'

'Tim Jones took the restricted open on Sterling Buck who finished four lengths ahead of Meadow Cottage after taking up the running approaching the third last fence.'

Hereford's Emma James recored her sixth winner of the season when taking the second division of the maiden on Bowland Girl who won by three lengths from Relatively High.'

'Backers of the long odds-on Polly Pringle had a shock when Mrs Carmen Goldsworthy's mare nearly unshipped Andrew Price at the second fence in the members' race.'

Price somehow managed to stay in the saddle and went on to win by a street's length from Light The Wick, who was so tired he was walked past the winning post.'

'As a follow-up to my 'Racing Rogues - The Scams, Scandals and Gambles of Horse Racing in Wales', I am looking for stories, press cuttings and photographs for my next book which will be 'A Miscellany of Horse Racing in Wales'.'

It will also include point-to-point and unlicensed meetings, riders and horses of note, strange or odd races, scams, gambles successful or otherwise. Please e-mail brianlee4@virginmedia.com or phone 02920736438.

Barry Amateur Swimming Club hands out awards at AGM

Some of the award winners

ON January 28, Barry Amateur Swimming Club held their annual AGM and presentation evening at St Andrews Golf Club.

Chairman Heulwen Cooper welcomed everyone to the 91st AGM and Annita Rees had agreed to present the cups with life members Elaine Romain, Teresa Wheeler, Trudi Phillips and Stephanie Cody.

Mrs Cooper said that during 2016, the club withdrew from the Arena League Competition as there were too few boys to compete in this event.

The club was grateful to Mark Borges who had trained as a level one swimming coach. It was noted that helpers and qualified coaches were always needed at the poolside.

In April, Mike Looker who had been coaching for many years, would be stepping back shortly. Roger and Jonathan, who have been working hard to train the junior squad, have both had to give up recently, so some parents have been helping. Mark Borges and his daughter Eleri Borges (junior coach) have been covering the Monday sessions.

Some of the senior swimmers had been volunteering for their Duke of Edinburgh awards recently and it is hoped that they might be able to offer some assistance poolside in the future.

The club was very fortunate that Martin Harries had stayed to help on a Sunday morning as he is a level one qualified coach.

The number of people currently involved in running the club is a very small, and it cannot run without more volunteers! On February 3, the postal long distance swim took place - girls first, and boys the following Friday.

On March 11, there is a gala at Rhonda and the club will host a home gala on May 7.

On July 15, most of the swimmers will be competing in the Cardiff

Barry Amateur Swimming Club members with their medals and trophies.

Bay meet, a competition which has been running for 27 years.

The treasurer reported that the club finances were in a good position at present and the election of the committee followed.

Cups and medals that had been won at the annual championships in November were presented to the winners by Annita Rees and some of the younger members received their awards from coach Eleri Borges.

Trophies presented for outstanding efforts were as follows: The Best Runner Up trophy were awarded to Daisy Thomas and Ethan Hole.

The Best Newcomer trophy was awarded to Ellie May Bradbury and Harry Townsend.

The Best Novice Swimmer trophies were awarded to Ruby Dickson Davies and Rauley Hunter.

The Most Improved Swimmer trophy were presented to Caitlin Williams and Thomas Pugh.

Some of the adults and older members who had worked hard during the year were also presented with trophies, the Loyalty Cup was presented to Eleri Borges for her coaching, and the club member of the Year trophies were awarded to Paula Harkus and Mike Sully.

The club captain will be Bethan Williams and vice captains, Pia Sully and Nia Fuller.

Under-11s edge game with neighbours

COWBRIDGE under-11s hosted our neighbours from Llantrisant, which is always a close affair.

Again the game failed to disappoint. The visitors took the lead straight from the kick-off, however the hosts quickly responded with Sam Sheppard equalling the score.

Cowbridge powered ahead with Josh Canning adding to the lead and the strong running of Will Brennan bagging a brace to take the lead to 4-1.

Great forward play witnessed the industrious work of Will Martin rewarded with a try. Not wanting to rollover, Llantrisant secured two quick in response, one of which went to Cowbridge's own Corey Williams who was 'playing for the badge' for Llantrisant.

Two more came in a counterattack for the hosts with Cowbridge securing a 7-3 lead through Harry Smith and again the powerful forward play from the pack from Sam Sheppard.

Llantrisant clearly wanted to make the game even and Cowbridge struggled to contain their powerful running with three quick tries, one again from Cowbridge's own Leo Beghini playing for the visitors.

With the ties all scored at 7-7 it appeared to be an even affair, however the Cowbridge Bears this season have failed to disappoint.

Paddy Whitestone clearly wanted to give the spoils to the home team and a fantastic well-worked move witnessed a scintillating final play and the honours going to the hosts 8-7.

Well done, Cowbridge, again another fantastic all-round team performance.

Under-14s and under-16s teams reach the cup finals

IT was a weekend to remember for Barry Town United Ladies FC as both the under-14s and under-16s girls teams successfully came through their South Wales FA Cup semi-finals with victories over AFC Porth and Merthyr Town.

The results continue an impressive season to date for both age groups who are competing on all fronts in league and cup competitions.

The under-14 team took on AFC Porth at Jenner Park Stadium and as anticipated this was always going to be a tight affair with one goal determining the victors in the previous encounters this season.

Barry again came out on top in this fixture 1-0 and deservedly so having controlled possession for long periods of the match but had to wait 10 minutes from the end to get their goal from striker Phoebe Curtis.

The girls put in a strong team performance with the visitors rarely threatening the Barry goal and the result could have been more convincing had Barry taken numerous opportunities.

However, the result now gives the team an opportunity to win some silverware with a final against local rivals Cardiff City Ladies that will take place at the end of April.

In the under-16 age group, Barry were looking to follow up their FAW Cup quarter-final win last week with another cup victory at Merthyr Town's Penydarren Park Stadium.

In freezing conditions the girls struggled to get into their normal rhythm in the first half, regularly gifting possession away despite dominating for long periods. The home side took a shock lead when Barry failed to deal with a cross from the left which was tapped home by the striker.

For the first time this season, Barry went in at half time behind and this was a real test of character but the squad picked themselves up and arguably put in their best half of football of the season in the second period running in five goals and missing numerous other opportunities.

The equaliser came from a Bethan O'Donnell cross deflected in for an own goal and then Striker Emma Cannon deservedly put Barry in front calmly chipping the ball over the goalkeeper who also had a fine game.

Barry were getting ahead of steam as the match wore on and soon got a third when midfielder Jasmine Rowley hooked the ball home in the penalty area from a set piece before substitute Sophie Hawkins made it four cutting in from the left wing.

The best goal was saved until the end when a fine move playing from the defensive unit into midfield saw the ball go out wide and Rowley was on hand to convert the cross to make the final score 5-1 to Barry.

Credit to the defensive unit who were strong throughout protecting their goal with Merthyr rarely troubling the Barry goalkeeper.

The under-16s will now take on Rhydyfelin in the final.

Under-14s squad: J Bullock, E Dimmick, C Meadows, T Cayton, S McDarren, O Barnett, E Hilliard, F Spence, M Cayton, T Trivett, E Matthews, S Meade, P Curtis, L Harris.

Under-16s squad: R Stanley, B O'Donnell, D Connolly, H Jenkins, O Townsend, J Rowley, A Jama, K Spargo, G Corne, S Rees, E Cannon, S Hawkins, M Atkins.

Cowbridge Darts League round-up

ON Tuesday, February 7 a full programme of league matches was played.

The league leaders the Edmondes B remain unstoppable, beating Llanharry 7-2. In the tight battle for second slot the Six Bells regained that position by beating the Victoria Inn 9-0, while the Highwayman Inn only won 6-3 against the Farmers Arms.

The Edmondes A beat the Red Lion 8-1 and in the closest match of the evening Hairy Farmers just defeated the Edmondes C 5-4.

It was an evening of excellent, high-scoring darts with Martin Gaffney (Edmondes B) and Paul Mayze (Victoria Inn) both hitting a 180. John Izzard (Hairy Farmers) joined the 100 and over club with a 101 three-dart-out.

Other notable high outs were Tony Fox's (Farmers Arms) 72 (a two-dart-out), Owen Carter (Farmers Arms) 94, Mike Newble (Llanharry) 89, Rob McCaver (Hairy Farmers) 73 and Frank Butler (Edmondes B) 56.

Present league standings, after 16 weeks, are: Edmondes B (104 points), Six Bells Inn (91), Highwayman Inn (90), Edmondes A (80), Edmondes C (75), Llanharry (73), Hairy Farmers (67), Farmers Arms (64), Victoria Inn (61) and Red Lion (15).

Next week (Tuesday, February 21) another full programme of league matches are scheduled. The Edmondes B hosts the Red Lion, the Hairy Farmers hosts the Farmers Arms, the Edmondes C hosts the Edmondes A, Llanharry hosts the Victoria Inn and the Highwayman Inn hosts the Six Bells Inn.

All matches start at 8.15pm and spectators are always welcome.

For further information e-mail Paul a cowbridgedarts@gmail.com, up-to-date information can be found on the website: www.darts.apsn.co.uk.

Barry RFC back in league action

THIS weekend, Barry RFC return to league action with a home fixture against Pontyclun, kick off 2.30pm.

The team will be looking forward to getting back on the winning trail, hopefully strengthened by the return of injured and unavailable players, their loss having seen the side struggle in recent weeks.

The lottery is still there to be won, with nobody matching last week's numbers which were 06, 08, 15 and 16; this week's jackpot will be £3,725.

Netball squad impress at inter-county tourney

THE Cardiff & Vale under-14 Netball Squad travelled to Bangor University for the Welsh under-14 Inter-Counties Championships on Saturday, January 28.

The squad of 26 players were selected last September from over 150 girls from all the secondary schools in Cardiff and the Vale. The squads were split into the A team tournament and the B team tournament.

Both teams set off to an impressive start by beating the South East Wales team convincingly and this set the tone for the day by beating the North East Wales, Powys, North Wales and West Wales.

Two tough matches for the A Squad against Glamorgan Valleys and Afan Nedd Tawe saw the girls having to pull on all their experience and mental toughness to secure these victories, which they did and play some outstanding netball to secure the Welsh title.

The B squad were incredible all day and won all their matches by some margin to become well deserved Welsh Champions. All the secondary schools should be extremely proud of these young netballers and what they have achieved.

A squad: Georgie Hellerman, (c) St Richard Gwyn High School, Elli Beddall (c) Cardiff High School, Mabli Evans Ysgol Bro Ederyn, Macy White St Cyres Comprehensive School, Niamh Sultana Stanwell Comprehensive, Hannah Jones Ysgol Glantaf, Gwenno Manley Ysgol Glantaf, Abbie Pattison Corpus Christi High School, Alyssa Colderley Stanwell Comprehensive, Caitlin Mackie Ysgol Glantaf, Lowri Clarke Ysgol Bro Ederyn, Catrin Roy Cowbridge Comprehensive School, Cadi Enoch Ysgol Glantaf.

Coaches: Melanie Hellerman Corpus Christi, Melissa Hunter Stanwell, Jo Knight Llantwit Major.

Barry Town United sit top of the league after victory

CONTINUING their quest for championship honours, Barry Town United went top of Welsh League Division One on Saturday, with a workmanlike 3-1 win at promoted Caldicot Town.

On an afternoon that saw the nation's attention diverted by the chase for the oval ball, the Jenner Park side kept their focus at Jubilee Way to record a fourth consecutive win on their travels.

With manager Gavin Chesterfield resting skipper James Saddler, midfielder Louis Gerrard maximised his inclusion by opening the scoring from the penalty spot and while the home side would bag an equaliser in the 38th minute, Gerrard restored the visitors' advantage into the second half.

With Caldicot accruing a slew of bookings and losing their goalkeeper to a sending off, Barry then drew a line under the encounter as TJ Nagi added their third, securing the three points that lifted them to the summit, after previous leaders Goytre crashed to a 4-1 defeat at Caerau Ely.

This Saturday, the Town will travel to the CCB Centre of Excellence in Ystrad Mynach to tackle Risca United, while Goytre welcome Ton Pentre to Plough Road, hoping to get their own title tilt back on track, ahead of an enticing Barry vs Goytre showdown at Jenner Park seven days later.

With only three points separating the current top four, Barry supporters will also be keeping an eye on events at Cambrian and Clydach and Port Talbot Town, although Gavin Chesterfield's squad does have the cushion of at least one game in hand on each of the chasing pack.

COWBRIDGE TOWN'S first team continued their run of good form with a resounding win in the quarter-final of the Vale Of Glamorgan ASRS Cup.

Playing at home the town hosted bottom of the league Masons Removals and came out 4-0 winners.

The town started well, and after seven minutes created their first of many chances with Connor Benyon crossing from the left and James Kennedy volleying just wide.

As the game progressed it became apparent that Cowbridge just had to remain patient to get their first goal.

Several chances were squandered with Gavin, Cooper and the Kennedy brothers all narrowly missing scoring opportunities.

It wasn't until the 40th minute that Cowbridge took the lead, with a somewhat scrappy goal. It came from a corner that Masons failed to clear, after two shots on goal the ball came back to Lloyd Lewis who with some aplomb buried the volley in the roof of the net.

Then directly from the kick off the ball was played forward to Pinchbeck who controlled it with his right foot and then hit an unstoppable left foot drive into the top left hand corner of the goal, from all of 25 yards, leaving the goalkeeper firmly rooted to the spot.

A couple of minutes later the half-time whistle went and the town went into the break 2-0 up.

The start of the second half saw much of the same with total domination from the town.

The game progressed with long range chances falling to Hans Kennedy, Mathew Little and Jack Gavin, all after good build up play in the middle of the park and down the flanks.

Substitutions were made with Ryan Ashby, Adam Bennet and Mike Gingell all getting valuable time on the pitch and making valuable contributions when they got on.

Despite all the changes Cowbridge kept their focus and their shape and the chances continued to follow with Gavin, Ashby both going close after good build up play.

Then in the 40th minute the ball came down the flank towards Gavin who rose to head it into the box where it was picked up by Ashby who was immediately brought down for a penalty.

Lloyd Lewis stepped up and sending the keeper the wrong way easily scored to make it 3-0.

The final touch was then added when Mathew Little found himself at the back post on the end of a Benyon cross and deftly chipped the ball over the floundering goalkeeper to make it 4-0.

Cowbridge manager Andy Pinchbeck confirmed the team had played well, but that he was still a little concerned at the amount of chances that had been squandered: "We still have work to do to improve but lets enjoy the wins while they keep coming."

Cowbridge Town's next game is away to AFC Rhose in a VOG Premier League top-of-the-table clash on Saturday, February 18.

Josh nets four as Saints beat Island Marine in cup

AFTER a few weeks away due to the weather St Athan returned to action, this time in the historic ASRS Cup, to host Island Marine at the newly-named Paul Lewis Memorial Ground.

A competition the club haven't won since 1977, Saints progressed to the semi-finals after a hard-fought game with Josh Morgan notching all four to add to an excellent overall man of the match display from the 18 year old.

Saints saw a couple of changes from their last outing with Jordan Mortimore and Richie Humphreys missing through work commitments and Leigh Lewis suspended.

In came Nicky Cox and Jonathan Ashton into the back four with Aaron Rogers up top and Gareth Richards between the sticks. Deon Garrison was named captain for the game.

Island Marine started the better side and looked to carve early openings, Saints only early effort was from Karl Steel, whose low drive was inches wide.

The away side continued to cause problems and soon reaped their rewards as a ball through the middle was missed by the home defence allowing Marine to steal in to open the scoring to much jubilation.

St Athan were working hard all over the park but their efforts weren't converting into chances. Marine meanwhile were causing problems down the left and should have doubled their lead off a fine low cross but nobody could get on the end of.

St Athan started to make inroads into the away defence and finally saw the benefits; Brad Young lifted a superb ball over the Marine defence for Josh Morgan to race away and finish exquisitely with a chip into the top corner.

Saints soon had the lead as Nicky Cox was caught by a high boot in the area and a spot kick awarded. Josh Morgan dually dispatched the penalty with aplomb.

Saints were rolling now and playing some good football as their confidence started to drain back into them and a third wasn't far away.

Steel picked the ball up on the left and produced a pass of such magnitude words cannot do it justice, the pass picked out Josh Morgan who let the ball run across him before firing right footed across the keeper into the net for his hat trick, tremendous finishing by the youngster.

The temperature may have been sub zero but the game really started to heat up as the tackles began to fly in. The game threatened to spill over after a late tackle by the Marine forward and a minor tussle followed which saw a Marine player receive a red card.

The second half saw the tempo drop right off until Marine pulled a goal back after some sloppy home defending, and this sparked Marine into life and they went close with two more efforts.

Saints looked to play on the counter-attack and one such attack soon paid off and put the tie to bed. Phil Morgan picked up the ball on the halfway line and proceeded to beat three players with skill and ease; he then played in his younger brother, Josh, who buried his fourth of the game and Saints were now through.

Saints advance to the semi-finals next month to play the winners of Barry Athletic and Vale United; the other semi-final is Cowbridge vs Rhose.

In the meantime, this week sees Saints host Alliance League side Cardiff Airport in the last 16 of the SWFA Intermediate Cup.

St Athan: Richards, Cox, Young, Ashton, Garrison, Laing, Lewis, Austin, Steel, Rogers, J.Morgan. Subs.

P.Morgan, Ball, Pugh. We'd like to thank our sponsors Owens Motor Services, Llandow for their tremendous support of the club. Also many thanks to Diving & Marine Engineering, Llantwit Valet & Car Wash and Kinsale Stone Co (Wales) Ltd.

Interesting discovery of cricket fixture card... FROM 1901!

A chance discovery by Miss Joan Bird of Freshwater East in Pembrokeshire of a piece of cricket memorabilia, the 1901 fixture card for the E H Ebsworth XI, has solved a mystery that has existed since those who were around at the time passed away.

Joan passed the fixture card onto the Cowbridge Cricket Club and immediately it shone a light on a decade for which existed little evidence.

Indeed the information contained on this small card provided the missing piece of information that would have been extremely helpful to the authors of '1840 and all that', the story of the Cowbridge club that was published to mark the 175th anniversary of the first recorded fixture in 1840.

When the book was written it was not clear what cricket had been played by the Cowbridge town club once Harry Ebsworth had opened his new ground and established his sporting and socially high end private XI in 1896.

Once the Rev Owen Jones established the Cowbridge Wanderers Cricket Club in 1906 there are good records but there was a mystery of a missing decade.

What the card tells us is that playing on Mr Ebsworth's fine ground was an Ebsworth second XI which had regular fixtures against local teams. This second XI had not been known of but it would appear to have been those same townsfolk who had previously played under the name of Cowbridge.

During the period of the gap in our knowledge they played as the Ebsworth second XI.

The 1901 second XI fixtures were a real mix. The School, referred to as 'The College' was played on May 23 and the School won. There were matches against such teams as Cardiff Electric, Cardiff Teachers and the Cardiff Commercial Travellers XI.

Local teams played included Llanharan, Bonvilstone, Llandough and Southerndown, all now sadly defunct.

The 1901 fixture card augments the bits and pieces held by the Cowbridge Cricket Club. Chance discoveries of the sort made by Joan are the lifeblood of creating a picture of the past.

Joan has a strong association with the Cowbridge Cricket Club. It was her father, Bruce who played with his brother Ralph and the Duns amongst others before the First World War.

Having survived Gallipoli he returned to help revive the club post war. Bruce was always regarded by the late president Colin Adams as the finest wicket keeper Cowbridge ever had but off the field he was equally effective off the field running a highly successful prize draw for the purchase of sightcreens to enable county cricket to be played at Cowbridge in 1931.

Joan's career took her to Morocco on behalf of the Save the Children fund and for that she was awarded an OBE for her work. On returning to this country Joan spent many years as headteacher of Pembroke Primary School.

If anyone would like to have a look at the cricket club's small but very interesting collection of memorabilia contact Jeffrey Bird on 07976793629.

Llantwit Major RFC face Wolves test

WITH no rugby last weekend due to the second round of the Six Nations competition, Llantwit Major RFC look forward this week to the return of the league on Saturday - and the challenge doesn't come any better than welcoming the runaway league leaders, Cefn Coed Wolves, to the Recreation Ground.

Cefn Coed have had a monumental season so far, winning 13 out of 13 in the league, and hold a nine point lead over second placed Llantwit despite playing two games less than them.

A tough task awaits the Llantwians as they will face a real uphill battle if they want to take the Wolves' unbeaten run from them.

Llantwit, however, will be quick to remind people that they came mighty close to beating Cefn Coed in the reverse fixture in Merthyr back in October in a 20-17 loss, where afterwards supporters of both teams agreed that the home team had probably had the rub of the green in some of the refereeing decisions that day.

Llantwit will no doubt feel they have a point to prove, not just in relation to this fixture but also in the sense that, by their own admission, they have underperformed at crucial times this season.

No better time then to put this to bed than against the top team in the league - kick off is at 2.30pm.

Cowbridge RFC look to do the double!

HAVING not played since January 21, Cowbridge first XV will be raring to go this Saturday at home against league newcomers Cardiff Saracens.

The Saracens have had a difficult season so far, winning just three of their 14 games and currently lie 11th in the league. Cowbridge currently lie sixth with six wins out of 12 and will be looking for the first double of the season, having won 3-13 at the Saracens in October.

There will be another break the following week as Wales take on Scotland and then on March 4 we travel to Tylorstown, followed by a home game against Old Penarthians on March 11.

The youth play at Beddau this Saturday.

SIX NATIONS RUGBY

WELSH HOPES SUNK AT THE DEATH AS 'LAST 10 MINUTES JINX' STRIKES YET AGAIN

AS the sounds of an epic, but ultimately frustrating, battle faded on the night air and the army of disappointed Welsh fans streamed away from Cardiff's Principality Stadium on Saturday, caretaker head coach Robert Howley summed up the feelings of the camp after the 16-21 defeat to England: "We've been criticised for winning ugly in the autumn; we didn't get over the line today, but it was a fantastic performance - apart from the last 6-7 minutes."

And, of course, few would argue with that statement, for the Welsh players to a man, had put on a hugely committed, at times heroic display, fronting up manfully to the RBS Six Nations title favourites with passion and defiance, laced with skill and real intent, that almost to the end of this titanic struggle between two evenly-matched teams looked set to reap their rightful reward.

Therein though lies the tale, for as Wales clung to a narrow 16-14 lead, with just three minutes remaining and a famous victory tantalisingly in sight, not for the first time it was snatched away, as an old problem again reared its head - Wales' continuing inability to close out tight-fought games when put under pressure as the stadium clock winds down.

In this case, it was the confident men in white who showed the way by taking clinical advantage of a poor clearance by centre Jonathan Davies that unfortunately failed to reach the safety of touch and quickly ran it back - which saw wing Elliot Daly racing around his opposite number, Alex Cuthbert (a late replacement for the injured George North) for a converted try that sent a much relieved English chariot rumbling on towards back-to-back Grand Slams.

"I think everyone could tell in those last 10 minutes that there were opportunities for England," said Howley. "They probably believed they were going to win, and that feeling is pretty precious... We defended really well, but unfortunately, those moments where we needed to execute under pressure, we didn't, and as a result, they scored with three minutes to go. That's what happens in Test football. We'll just have to make sure we're better next time when we get into that position."

The scene had been set for this monumental 130th clash between arch rivals, stretching back to 1881 (England now have 61 wins under their belt compared to Wales' 57, with 12 matches drawn), by RFU chairman Bill Beaumont - "The rivalry will never be dampened... It is one of the great sporting occasions... That has been the same for 130 years and it will continue to be a great rivalry for the next century," said the old England warrior.

by Don John

Wales had made only two changes - props Rob Evans and Tomas Francis - who were rewarded for their efforts off the replacement bench in the win against Italy six days before, and the band and choirs had barely left the field when England were penalised and Wales claimed first blood through the boot of Leigh Halfpenny.

Centre Owen Farrell replied moments later with an equalising penalty and English power and accuracy began to dominate a first quarter that saw scrum half Ben Youngs squeeze over for an 8-3 lead as the pressure told.

To their credit, the home team, urged on by their '16th man' - a capacity Welsh crowd in full voice - applied intense pressure of their own and forced a penalty, which Halfpenny lofted over.

Then the crowd erupted once more as outside half Dan Biggar made a stunning break that took everyone by surprise, but with no-one in close support, he was forced to kick ahead - and the ball was hacked into touch.

Full-blooded exchanges were fast and furious, outstanding action man Ross Moriarty scattering all before him (inexplicably, he was to be substituted later) as Wales, to their immense credit, shook off memories of lacklustre starts and met the fierce challenge head-on, putting in over 61 tackles to England's 38 and laying siege to their line in a pulsating, seesaw first half that saw livewire scrum half Rhys Webb held up just finger tips short of a try, which culminated in Liam Williams completing a training ground move with a fine touchdown at the posts, the simple conversion giving Wales a deserved 13-8 lead at the interval.

The breathless intensity showed no sign of abating after the change-over, although controversial substitutions seemed to disrupt Welsh momentum and those English players, in particular, who had been on the receiving end of rampaging Moriarty's uncompromising presence were no doubt delighted to see the back of him!

When the ice-cool Farrell struck again with a penalty to cut the deficit to just two points, home fans feared the balance of power was ominously shifting, with Wales clinging to a fragile 16-11 lead following another Halfpenny penalty, and facing an all too familiar situation with 10 nail-biting minutes to go and victory agonisingly within reach.

Liam Williams capped off a fine move to put Wales in front 13-8.

Ross Moriarty came of age with a barnstorming performance

Incredibly, they appeared to have weathered a final all-out English onslaught on their line and the ball went out to the Scarlets' centre - the crowd willing him to hoof it into touch... Alas, it was not to be, and England capitalised to break Welsh hearts yet again at the death.

"We just couldn't get a foothold in the last 10 minutes and when we did, we didn't execute as effectively as we would want to," Howley admitted.

"Ultimately, test matches are decided in the last 10 minutes, in terms of composure and discipline, and executing those decisions under pressure. I think England did that a little better than us and as such deserved to win. We'll try to learn from those last 10 minutes where we went wrong."

The problem for Howley and his fellow coaches is that fans may well ask why it is taking so long to find a solution to a 10-minute 'mystery' that prevents this immensely talented squad from finally realising their full potential.

Meanwhile, Murrayfield awaits a week Saturday, and the improving Scots are already sharpening their dirks in anticipation of a second big RBS Six Nations scalp.

The heartbreak is clear to see on Alex Cuthbert's face as Elliot Daly snatches victory for England.

Skipper Alun Wyn Jones led by example as always.
